AGED "MOTHER" OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH TO END HER DAYS IN PEACE

Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy as She Appears To-day. Sketched by Boston American Staff Artist.

EDDY SUIT ABANDONED

Former Senator Chandler Withdraws Action and Whole Case Is Dismissed—Streeter Makes Dramatic Demand for Judgment on Mrs. Eddy's Mental Capacity by the Masters.

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 21.—The case for an accounting brought by her "next friends" against Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, founder of the Christian Science Church, was to-day abandoned at the request of the plaintiffs.

This action was taken, former Senator Chandler stated in court, because the "next friends" of the aged woman could not now under the proceedings obtain possession of any of her fortune.

Lawyer Frank S. Streeter, counsel for Mrs. Eddy, demanded that the masters proceed with the case so that the question of Mrs. Eddy's competency to manage her affairs on March 1 last, when the case was brought against her, might be determined.

MRS. EDDY VICTORIOUS.

The masters, composed of Judge Edgar Aldrich, Hon. Hosea W. Parker and Dr. George F. Jelly, the noted Boston alienist, granted the motion of Mr. Chandler. The case was withdrawn. It was considered a great victory for Mrs. Eddy.

When court opened to-day attorneys for both sides were on hand. They had held a number of conferences late yesterday, and there was some delay in opening the hearing. When court convened, Mr. Chandler, addressing the masters, said:

"It will doubtless be a relief to the masters to be informed that the counsel for the 'next friends' have this day filed with the clerk of the court a motion for the dismissal of the pending suit, and that they herewith withdraw their action before the masters without asking from them any finding upon the questions submitted to them by Judge Chamberlain.

"There are many reasons for this action, and the principa one resuts from the consideration of the unprofitabeness of any immediate resuts upon the issues as now framed, compared with the burdens and disadvantages to be incurred by us both before and after the decision.

AN ALTRUISTIC SUIT.

"The suit has been almost wholly altruistic in its nature, and not a single dollar of the large fortune whose existence is disclosed, or which may be accumulated as a consequence of this suit, can become at this time the property of the 'next friends.'

"There are also reasons, sentimental in their character, overcoming the strong desire of the 'next friends' to prove the fact and vindicate the reasons upon which this suit is based, which suit, however, is hereby dismissed."

Frank S. Streeter of counsel for Mrs. Eddy, addressed the masters in reply to Senator Chandler's motion, and said:

"In behalf of Mrs. Eddy we demand that the masters proceed with this hearing and determine the questions submitted, namely, that Mrs. Eddy was incompetent to manage her business affairs on March 1, 1907.

"The motion of the counsel for the 'next friend' proves that their case has collapsed, and that they are now running to cover. This is their legal right, but I am thinking of the legal rights of Mrs. Eddy. She is entitled to the protection of the court.

ASSAILS THE SON.

"After providing liberally for her child and her own, she had devoted a large portion of her money to the growth of the religious belief founded by her. Now her adopted son has loaned the use of his name to a suit brought by alleged 'next friends,' but really started by a certain New York newspaper, which has retained great counsel and paid the bills. It is based on false pretences, and is unique in the history of legal procedure. We have all along questioned whether it was brought in good faith.

"Mrs. Eddy and her counsel have cooperated with the masters in everything they wished, she has submitted herself for their inspection, and some of her replies to their questions have been sent out to all the world. They are an evidence in themselves as to whether she is a competent or not.

"Nothing has been denied to yours, and the charge that she is incompetent has thoroughly collapsed. Now these 'altruists' wish to avoid any decision from you that Mrs. Eddy is competent.

"We demand a finding on the issues of the case as they now stand. We speak not only for Mrs. Eddy, but for every other aged citzen of this State, whose property, person and religious convictions are in danger.

Masters' Decision.

Judge Aldrich read the decision of the masters as follows:

"We have only this observation to make with reference to the present aspect of this case:

"We have acted from the beginning upon the idea that the issue submitted to us was purely a property issue. We have endeavored to hold the lines of this trial with respect to such a view of the controversy before us, excluding as far as possible all considerations in respect to religious doctrines or religious faith.

"Of course, in order to have an issue there must be a suit, a proceeding at equity or at law. There was such a situation in respect to the party in this case, and out of that suit Judge Chamberlain framed an issue which he submitted to the masters, and in which he in detail provided what appearances should be made.

YEGG BAND DYNAMITE HYDE PARK P. O. SAFE

ROBBERS FLEE WITH CONTENTS WITH WHOLE NEIGHBORHOOD IN THEIR WAKE.

Blowing open the safe in the sub-post-office station in the store of Charles F. Morrison & Co., at the corner of Blake and East River streets, Hyde Park, at an early hour to-day, a band of five yeggs secured $60 in cash and $40 in stamps and made their escape, although the noise of the explosion aroused the neighborhood, and they were seen as they ran away from the scene of the robbery.

The outside door of the private stairway leading to the tenement of John McDonald, over the oMrrison store, was found fastened by wire, the robbers evidently guarding against a surprise from above by this method.

Thomas Lynch, night watchman at the plant of the Insulated Wire Company, heard the explosion and saw the men as they made their escape along the railroad tracks.

VICTORIOUS BOSTON TYPOS RETURN HOME

Enthusiastic over their victory in having secured the 1908 convention of the International Typographical Union for Boston, most of the Hub delegates have returned from the convention which has just adjourntde at Hot Springs, Arkansas. Many other cities made a fight for the next convention, Lexington, Ky., being the strongest city the Boston delegates had to contend with.

Norman E. McPhail, president of the Boston Typographical Union, said to an AMERICAN reporter to-day that undoubtedly the biggest convention ever held by the Typographical Union will be held here next year. There will be in attendance, it is estimated, between 4,000 and 5,000 delegates and visitors. Already plans are being made by the unions throughout the West and South, he said, for the Boston convention.

Hub Delegates Honored.

Boston was also honored by having three of its delegates appointed to important committees. Miss Mattie Gillespie, one of the few woman delegates to the convention, was on the credential committee. James H. Butuer was a member of the resolution committee, and John Donglass was on the committee on returns and finances.

Mr. McPhail introduced a resolution asking that Congress remove the duty on white paper. Mr. McPhail stated that the growth of newspapers had been seriously retarded by the enormous increase in the cost of white paper. The resolution was referred to the coming convention of the American Federation of Labor. Robert S. Allen, president of the Boston Mailers' Union, took part in many of the debates, especially those relating to legislation affecting his craft.

Guests of Chicago Women.

On the way to the convention the Boston delegates were finely entertained by the Chicago ladies' auxiliary.

The delegates from Boston, in their campaign to have the next convention here were aided through letters written by Governor Guild and Mayor Fitzgerald, inviting the delegates to come to Boston.

"The principal features of the convention," said President McPhail of the Boston Union, "were the reports on the eight-hour day campaign, which showed that the Typographical Union had scored practically a complete victory throughout the country. The establishment of an old-age pension was probably the most important action taken. It provides for a suitable pension for members sixty years of age who have seen twenty consecutive years of membership, who are incapacitated or unable to find work."

POLICE CATCH THRTE ALLEGED HIGHWAYMGN

Charged with robbing William Sweeney of the Hotel Royal, Court street, of $14 on Tileston street, North End, last night, Dischi Desisto, 16 years old; Lombardo Sachetti, eighteen, and Joseph Guarante, nineteen, all residents of the North End, are in the custody of the police.

According to the story of Sweeney, he went to a Hanover street restaurant last night seeking some chicken soup, and when he could not get it three boys invited him to accompany them.

"We will take you to a place where you can get everything you want," he says one of them told him.

On Tileston street he says they held him against a wall and went through his pockets.

When they had removed $14, all he had, Sweeney asked them for car fare home and got it.

"Why didn't you make an outcry?" the lieutenant at the Hanover street station asked him when he eventually reached there.

"Not for mine," answered Sweeney. "A few weeks ago I was held up and robbed, and because I yelled the robbers beat me until I couldn't see. That experience taught me something, and I decided to let these fellows have the money and say nothing."

Patrolman McDonald of the Hanover street station found two of the boys shortly after Sweeney reported that he had been robbed and other officers captured the third one this morning.

Sweeney has identified the three as the ones who robbed him, the police say.

HEARTBROKEN, IN JAIL, GIRL SHOT SELF

NEWCASTLE, Pa., Aug. 21.—Heartbroken and humiliated over her detention in jail here, Maud King, a pretty twenty-year-old girl of Youngstown, O., is to-day in a critical condition, the result of shooting herself last night. Maud left a note saying: "I don't care, I'm disgusted with life."

ALLEGED FRATRICIDE FOUND IN CANADA

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 21.—Deputy Chief of Inspectors Nickerson returned last night from Montreal, Canada, with Michael Sylvestri, the Italian who is wanted in this city in connection with the stab of his brother about three years ago.

Sylvestri, the police say, stabbed his brother with a file and since that time, up to within some weeks ago, had not been heard from. The brother died.

ARRESTED, BOY KILLS HIMSELF FOR SHAME

EAST BOSTON YOUTH SUMMONSED TO COURT ON PARENTS' COMPLAINT, TURNS ON GAS.

Rather than face the judge of the East Boston Police Court this morning and answer to his parents' charge that he is stubborn and disobedient, George B. Hathaway, seventeen years old, turned on the gas in his room at his home, No. 262 Princeton street, East Boston. He was dead when, at 5 o'clock this morning, his mother, smelling the gas fumes, entered her son's room.

The boy is known to have been overcome with shame at his being ordered into court. He has told his boy friends that he would not appear, but would give no explanation of how he intended to escape the court's order. The boy, the police of the district say, was not a vicious lad, but he is known to have given his parents much trouble.

The parents told the police this morning that they feel that the gas was accidentally turned on during the night, and that their boy did not kill himself.

The boy's father is William C. Hathaway, a shoe dealer, well known and highly respected in East Boston, where he has lived for years.

HUB PEOPLE IN ON CESTRIAN

After a pleasant voyage the Leyland line steamer Cestrian reached port today from England. Among her passengers were R. C. Blodgett of St. Louis, a winner of a Rhodes scholarship at Oxford College, England, who has completed his course of three years there; his sisters, Gertrude and Margaret; Professor James Hopkins, formerly instructor of art in the Boston schools and now connected with the Maryland Institute at Baltimore, his wife and daughter Madeline; O. G. Sleeper, a clerk in the Boston Municipal Court; Lawrence Bond, a Newton lawyer; and the Rev. Bowley Green of Providence.

SIR THOMAS TO SEND CHALLENGE THIS FALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—There are the best of reasons for the statement that Sir Thomas Lipton's fourth challenge for the America's cup will be received by the New York Yacht Club either during September or the early part of October.

Sir Thomas has been making arrangements to this end ever since his arrival in London from his lengthy visit to this country last Fall. He told his intimate friends here just before he sailed, or practically told them, that he would again be with them in 1908 acting a very significant part in yachting matters.

Sir Thomas will keep his promise, and will be heard from this Autumn. There has been no official expression on the matter as yet, but the stories abroad that Sir Thomas has given up the idea of lifting the cup are wrong. He has never abandoned the hope that the blue ribbon of the sea would in the end fall to his lot to take "back home," as he has frequently expressed it.

The size of the challenging craft had not been decided upon a fortnight ago, but may be by this time. This important point, and, in fact, all the details of the challenge, will be kept secret until the New York Yacht Club has been officially notified. To do otherwise would be discourteous to that club.

There has been no understanding about the terms of the challenge. This matter remains the same as ever. The N. Y. Y. C. has not made any promises to Sir Thomas, nor given him the slightest intimation that his challenge will receive other than the usual club consideration in such cases.

Sir Thomas will challenge, however, and it may be just as well for those interested in another international race to make up their minds that this is the situation at present.

DISCUSS BAY STATE POLITICS

Roosevelt Confers with Lodge And Guild During His Provincetown Visit.

COLD BACK SEAT FOR CRANE

PROVINCETOWN, Aug. 21.—In the visit of President Roosevelt to Cape Cod to lay the corner stone of the Pilgrims' monument that is to rise 250 feet in air on Town Hill, there were side lights of deep political significance.

The President delivered the most important message that has come from the administration since John D. Rockefeller was compelled to testify on the witness stand in the United States Court at Chicago.

He had long conferences in which Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Governor Curtis Guild and Lieutenant-Governor Eben S. Draper were the central figures. These conferences are believed to have referred to the present State campaign and to Senator Crane's opposition to Taft. Senator Crane was among those present on the platform at the monument, but he was not in any of the conferences. He did, however, speak to Senator Lodge. They shook hands and parted company speedily.

Lodge on Hand Early.

Senator Lodge was in Provincetown twelve hours before Senator Crane arrived. Also the senior Senator got to the stand first.

What the leaders in Massachusetts talked about none would say. Governor Guild laughed it off in his jovial way. "Nothing at all, just pleasantries of the day," was his attitude.

The three, the President, Lodge and Guild were together more than any other of the leaders on the reserved section of the big platform, about which were gathered officers of the army and navy, high officers of the Masonic Grand Lodge of the State and other distinguished guests.

Governor Guild looked very serious at times when the President clutched him by the knee and emphasized his remarks by pounding on the Governor's thigh. Once the Governor received a presidential whack on the back.

Lodge Barred from Wharf.

Senator Lodge was very much in it although he arrived at the hill before the rest of the party, somewhat ruffled in temper because the officials wouldn't allow him on the wharf at which the President landed and he was compelled to walk through the dust half way to his destination.

"Told them I had to make a speech, but they didn't seem to mind that very much."

Senator Crane did not go to the wharf to meet the President. He arrived in the forenoon by train and was driven from the station to the hill in company with Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce and some of the other belated guests. Lieutenant-Governor Draper was just behind him. Immediately Mr. Draper went to the Presidential party, while Senator Crane found someone to talk to on the platform.

The junior Senator was, however, invited to make one of the group of notables whose picture was posed for. After that he retired to his rear seat and remained an unobtrusive spectator and listener.

Lodge at Right Hand.

At the banquet in the Town Hall which followed the exercises at the monument, Senator Lodge sat on the President's right hand. Senator Crane sat on the left of Governor Guild, who was at the left of Ambassador Bryce, while next to the junior Senator was Congressman Lovering.

Even during the meal the President and Senator Lodge were deep in discussion of some matters of importance.

To those who see things politically the attitude of the President, Guild and Lodge seemed to be indicative of a discussion of something other than the laying of the corner stone of the Pilgrims' monument.

When the President finally lifted his hat and disappeared down the long wharf to the waiting launch that was to convey him to the Mayflower, the Governor accompanied him as far as the landing. There they had rather a long adieu, considering the fact that the President had insisted he must get away at 3:30 sharp in order to get back to Oyster Bay early to-morrow morning.

Altogether the President was in the gaily bedecked town somewhat less than five hours. He arrived at the dock landing at exactly 10:45 in the morning and left at 3:35.

Great Day for Town.

It was a great day for the little fishing village where the Pilgrims landed for the first time after sailing for so many months across the Atlantic to find a place to establish their settlement.

Never before had a President been entertained as the guest of the town. Never before had so many men of note in two nations, no, three, for Baron Rosen of Russia was there, been received at the same time. Small wonder it was that in the excitement some things were forgotten and some guests were allowed to find their way about as best they could and trust to the courtesy of the police.

Naturally the great centre of attraction was the President, and he wasn't left alone a minute. When his carriage drove through the narrow thoroughfares that they call streets (they are twenty feet wide and have board sidewalks of uncertain width) with marines and bluejackets lined every foot of the way, with guards beside his carriage and armed soldier sailors to the front and rear of his vehicle, cheer after cheer greeted him. He stood up and bowed constantly. So did Governor Guild, who was with him.

People came from miles around on special trains and boats and fought for places where they might catch a glimpse of the Chief Executive and perhaps intercept one of those expansive smiles of his. This is the way that the town felt:

"Just think, we saw him twice!" from one fair native.

"You did," in tones of admiration from an unfortunate and jealous friend.

"Yes, we did," with the accent on the "did."

Governor Guild started off the speechmaking yesterday and introduced the President. The Governor was brief in his remarks. He had hardly started, however, before something happened.

Let Them Come Nearer.

He turned suddenly and looked at the crowd behind the ropes down the hill, who were straining their ears to hear. The President moved his hand. The Governor raised his voice.

"Officer," he called, "those people down the hill cannot hear the addresses that are being made. Let them come up a little nearer."

That was just what the crowd wanted. Police and ropes were set aside and they dashed up the rise with a rush that brought up clouds of dust that settled over the grand stand. Mrs. Roosevelt, who sat near the President, glanced up somewhat apprehensively when the mob seemed about to mount to the very position occupied by the guests. But the President laughed.

In a twinkling a half dozen Secret Service men and some police jumped against the onrushing line and held it. Then a company of marines moved quickly in front and held the crowd in check.

Evidently Mr. Roosevelt was hungry at yesterday's banquet after the speechmaking, for he set the example of falling to for tackling some real Cape chowder.

NAMED IN $50,000 'HEART' SUIT, WIDOW ONLY LAUGHS

PORTSMOUTH STIRRED BY ACTION AGAINST RICH MRS. MARY F. WALKER.

By Long Distance Telephone to the Boston American.

PORTSMOUTH, Aug. 21.—Charged with stealing the affections of Joseph E. Hoxie, Portsmouth's Beau Brummel, and sued for $50,000 by his wife on that allegation, Mrs. Mary F. Walker, a beautiful and rich widow, declares: "Why, I don't know that Hoxie person."

In the mean time, the young wife of the man in the case swelters in jail for contempt of court. She flatly refused to answer the questions of the magistrate before whom a hearing in the matter was being held.

Mrs. Hoxie is in the Rockingham county jail. She refused to discuss her suit when a reporter visited the prison. She is a beautiful woman but very determined in her ways. It is declared that she did not hesitate to "punch her husband on the nose" when she thought matters justified it, and that she herself, through this drastic conduct, alienated the erstwhile love of her well-dressed spouse.

Mrs. Walker talked with a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN. She laughed uproariously at the suggestion that she had won Hoxie's love. Asked if he had done anything for her except paint (Hoxie is a plain house painter) she said that he had not.

"We believe," says Samuel W. Emery, Jr., of counsel for the plaintiff, "that Mrs. Hoxie has suffered a wrong. Anybody who knows either Mr. Hollis or myself will not believe that he would be in this case if we did not think that there was a case. Mrs. Hoxie is silent on our advice. We expect and want a trial; this story will come out in court."

"See my lawyer," says Hoxie, "see Lawyer Guptill."

"I'm not his lawyer," says Guptill.

PORTSMOUTH GASPS.

And Portsmouth, gasping—gasping quietly and in dignified fashion, as becomes one of the oldest and most aristocratic of New England communities—waits with bated breath for the great trail of Hoxie versus Walker, at the October term of the Superior Court.

The women in the case are both handsome. Mrs. Walker, a favorite in Navy society, is barely forty; Mrs. Hoxie is eight or ten years here junior. Hoxie, an employing house-painter and decorator, with a nobby-looking shop on State street, near the Hotel Rockingham, is thirty-eight. Mrs. Hoxie has nothing; Mrs. Walker, queen of a beautiful home on Middle street and the presiding divinity of a nobby bungalow out on the road to the Wentworth in Newcastle, is the administratrix of her late husband's $300,000 estate. She is the mother of a boy of seventeen, a student at the fashionable St. Paul's School at Concord, and of a beautiful girl of fifteen, Geraldine, who is enrolled at Briar Cliff.

Arthur W. Walker, who was a brother of J. Albert Walker, the millionaire real estate broker of Boston, living at the Vendome, and of Clarence Walker, prominent in business and politics at Malden, Mass., died last November after an automobile trip with Hoxie. The latter came to Portsmouth from Boston some fifteen or seventeen years ago. He does the biggest painting business in all this section. Walker was indisputably the "Coal King" of New Hampshire.

Mrs. Walker graciously received a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN today.

"If it wasn't cruel," she said, "this suit would be ridiculous. I don't know this Hoxie person, except as a house painter and decorator who has done a lot of work for me here, most of it during the Winter while I was at Hot Springs, Ark. I do not know the man socially in the slightest degree, and I am at a perfect loss to account for this charge by his wife."

Mrs. Hoxie alleges in her writ that Arthur Walker's shapely widow, "by her artful importunities, entreaties and persuasions, did detain and keep said plaintiff's husband with her a long time, at different times, and then and there wrongfully, wickedly and unjustly, by her influence and artful persuasions, induced said plaintiff's husband to cease to have any affection, love or regard for said plaintiff."

City's Swellest Dresser.

Joe Hoxie is the best dressed man in Portsmouth. He is stopping at the best hotel in the State, while his wife is in jail. Mr. Hoxie was coming away from a good dinner at the Rockingham to-day when a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter asked him if he had anything to say. Hoxie wore a mixed gray suit of ultra fashionable cut, a natty straw lid, turned over on the front porch, a white tie over a perfect dear of a lavender shirt, and rubber-bottomed white canvas shoes. His lower jaw protrudes, and he bites his words.

He looked the reporter over as if he was going to estimate what it would cost to paint it.

"Anything to say?" he snapped, "why should I have anything to say?"

"As a bone of contention between two women, according to the allegations of your wife," said the reporter, "I thought that you might want to say something."

"You see my lawyer," said Hoxie, "see Ernest Guptill; he's my lawyer."

"Any word of sympathy for your wife in jail?"

"See my lawyer," said Hoxie.

"Will Guptill tell how keenly you sympathize with your wife, Mr. Hoxie?"

"Well, you see him," said Hoxie, striding off.

Will Fight to End.

"Why," said Mrs. Walker, "I have hardly patience enough to discuss the case. Of course I have been making some inquiries since the papers were filed. For one thing, I understand that Mrs. Hoxie was once going to sue my husband for $100,000 for taking her husband away from her. She wants money and money is all she wants, and she will never get so much as a penny of mine. I have told my lawyers to fight to the end.

"And so far as alienating his affections goes, I understand that she has been talking for two years or more of divorcing Hoxie. I guess he will be glad enough to let her."

"Does Hoxie do anything but paint for you? Have the care of any property for you or anything of that sort?"

Mrs. Walker laughed. If a lady ever "roars," she roared.

"Why," she said, "I wouldn't trust the man with five cents.

"I don't believe that I have lost a friend because of these proceedings. One always has enemies, of course. Still, my boy and girl go everywhere. My thoughts are entirely of them. My girl is a beauty. Her photographs have won first prizes everywhere. They are to be shown in Boston at the next convention of photographers, the work of an artist at my old home in Ohio."

Mrs. Walker was a student at the Morgan Academy here twenty years ago when Arthur Walker, ten years her senior, fell in love with her and won her. She is of a splendid figure, well set off to-day in a mourning gown.

At the jail, where Mrs. Hoxie has been chumming with Matron Gray since she was "locked up," the painter's wife sent out word that Mr. Hollis had instructed her not to talk. She would not be seen.

HEBREWS TO SETTLE SUIT IN SYNAGOGUE

By Long Distance Telephone to the Boston American.

LYNN, Aug. 21—The ceremony of taking an oath in a synagogue, considered one of the most sacred rites by Hebrews of the orthodox faith, and one that has as yet never taken place in New England, is likely to be the result of the litigation between Jacob Kupperstram and his brother-in-law, Hyman Schliefstein.

The weird ceremonial, which is looked upon with awe by every Hebrew, will attract hundreds of visitors to this city, and, although the time and the place have not yet been decided upon, many inquiries have come from all part of New England.

Kuppeerstram, who is to take oath, will enter the synagogue accompanied by ten other men, this number being required by the Jewish religion for public worship. All will be dressed in white and blow horns. They will approach the tabernacle, and there upon the ancient scroll Kupperstram will have to swear that his contentions are true.

"The orthodox Hebrew fears this oath more than anything else, and the one who will venture to take it must be pretty certain that he is in the right," declare those that are familiar with the character of the ceremony. "There seldom was a man that did not flinch just before he was to enter the synagogue."

The whole thing came about through the charges brought by Kupperstram against Schliefstein, in which the former accuses the latter of stealing $900.

For two days Judge Henry T. Lummus tried in vain to adjust the matter. Today the final efforts were to be made. When Judge Lummus failed to appear, the attorneys for both sides got together, and the novel manner of disposing of the case was agreed upon, Schliefstier agreeing to pay Kupperstram $900 and settle the case, so far as the parties at interest are concerned, provided Kupperstram goes through the ancient ceremony of taking an oath to the effect that he does not owe Hyman an equal sum.

Hearst's Plan for Control of Trusts Favored by Roosevelt

I BELIEVE in a national incorporation law for corporations engaged in interstate business. I believe, furthermore, that the need for action is most pressing as regards those corporations which, because they are common carriers, exercise a quasi-public function, and which can be completely controlled in all respects by the Federal government. The National government should exercise over them a similar supervision and control to that which it exercises over national banks.—President Roosevelt in his Pilgrim Memorial speech at Provincetown yesterday.

ON March 1, 1907, William Randolph Hearst introduced in Congress a bill "to provide for national incorporation and control of corporations engaged in commerce among the several states." In addition to providing for the national incorporation of every corporation that does any interstate business—except national banks, which are already under Federal control—Mr. Hearst's bill provided against overcapitalization by requiring that, when stock is issued for property, the directors make oath as to the value of the property. The bill provided that false statements as to value, knowingly made, constituted a felony. There was provision in the bill to compel corporations now working under State laws to accept the provisions of the national act by taxing all that do not incorporate under its provisions.

'NEXT FRIENDS' DROP FAMOUS EDDY SUIT

what parties should appear here, and evidently contemplated that the "next friends were to go further and maintain their claim with respect to the issue presented.

"They having withdrawn from this hearing and with notice that they intend to exercise their right to dismiss the bill in the Superior Court, we think there is nothing left to be answered by Mrs. Eddy or decided by us.

"Therefore, we should not feel warranted in going forward ex parte, with a view to establishing the mental status of Mrs. Eddy on the first of March. We think we should report to the court what has been done, that is, report the evidence under the commission.

"The commission, I think, requires that we should report the evidence. We may be wrong in our disposition of your motion, Mr. Streeter. Although this is a friendly suit, it, in a sense, of course, involves the interests of different parties, and when the parties who assert a lack of mental capacity withdraw, there is no controversy left.

"Mrs. Eddy stands with nothing to answer, as we view it.

DECISION HALTS TRIAL.

"If we take the course which I have just suggested, report all the evidence up to the present time, and then report what action has been taken by the 'next friend' on your motion, and then in case we are in error about the effect of this withdrawal, Judge Chamberlain will only have to direct that the trial proceed; and if we are right, we will only have to accept the situation as one in which the plaintiffs have the right to dismiss the bill and end the controversy.

"If we should go forward, we might do something unwarrantable, and, according to our view, we should, if we undertook to decide this issue, to go forward in the action of the next friends and decide on the question of Mrs. Eddy's capacity. If we should stop and report what has been done, to Judge Chamberlain, there could be no harm done such as results from delay.

"I think before these three volumes which have come from the stenographer are formally made a part of the report, the record should be corrected, whether by myself or in connection with Mr. Parker and Dr. Jelly or by counsel. There are necessarily some verbal errors, of course. We do not say this as any criticism on anybody.

"Is there anything further to be said?

"Do you except to this, Mr. Streeter? Do you except to the refusal to proceed?

Mr. Streeter (apparently misunderstanding)—I can't help accepting it. If I could help it, Your Honor, I should make an exception—Oh! I beg Your Honor's pardon! I did not understand your question. You ask if I excepted?

Judge Aldrich—Yes.

Mr. Streeter—I accept the decision; yes.

The five days' hearing before Judge Edgar Aldrich, Dr. George F. Jelly and Hosea W. Parker, as masters in chancery, to decide the question of Mrs. Eddy's competency, has been a series of disappointments to Mr. Glover's counsel. They have failed in their efforts to introduce evidence on which they relied to establish Mrs. Eddy's incompetency.

A few letters, acknowledged to have been written by Mrs. Eddy, have been introduced, together with documents pertaining to Mrs. Eddy's religious beliefs.

They have failed to secure damaging testimony from the friends of Mrs. Eddy.

The most decisive factor in the discouragement of the "next friends," and their counsel, was the examination of Mrs. Eddy at her home by the masters last week.

"She's smarter than a steel trap," is said to have been the verdict of former Senator Chandler himself, after the examination, for, despite his allegations that Mrs. Eddy was unbalanced, he was forced to acknowledge the keenness of her mind and her ready common sense replies to the questions put to her by the masters.

Another stunning blow was the readiness with which General Frank Streeter, counsel for Mrs. Eddy, assented to the proposition of the masters that allenists be allowed to visit Mrs. Eddy. This was not expected, the belief being that he would fight the proposition.

So confident were the counsel for the defense that the examination of Mrs. Eddy would prove but a repetition of the good impression that she made last week that they welcomed this opportunity to establish by allenists her capability in business affairs.

NOLAN HELD FOR STABBING WIFE

Charged with an attack on his wife Mary, with a dirk-like pocket knife, the woman being stabbed eight times on August 7, Daniel Nolan, forty-five years, of No. 329 Main street, Cambridgeport, was to-day held in the Third District Court, in Cambridge, by Judge Almy in $1,500 bonds.

Since the stabbing Mrs. Nolan had been hovering between life and death in the Cambridge Relief Hospital, where the doctors now believe she will live.

Nolan, who had been living apart from his family for some time, returned to his home, and, it is alleged, quarreled with his wife because she would not give him part of the money she was earning as dishwasher in a Boston restaurant, to keep her two little children. The stabbing resulted.

SAYS HIS SON IS KIDNAPPED

The police have a child kidnapping case on their hands and are trying to locate nine-year-old Harry Koytz of 83 Chambers street, West End.

Morris Koytz, the father of the boy, reported to the police that fourteen weeks ago his wife went away and at the same time a Boston man, who formerly had a profitable business here, deserted his family.

Three weeks ago, Koytz said, a child was taken from the apartment over his and returned in a few days. He thinks the intention then was to take his boy but that a mistake was made.

Last Sunday, Koytz said, several of his neighbors saw a woman go to the house, come out with the boy and disappear down the street.

PRESIDENT IS WARNED OF DEATH

Crank Arrested in New York Would Also Kill Crowned Heads.

EVANS WAS ALSO ON LIST

By Boston Americans Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—His pockets filled with incoherent and threatening letters addressed to President Roosevelt, King Edward, King William, Rear Admiral Evans, King Victor Emmanuel, District Attorney Jerome, Timothy D. Sullivan and "The plain people," a young man who gave his name as Cummings, but whose letters are signed "Pinnoch" and "Recco" was arrested by Detectives Melvor and Stanton in a telegraph office at No. 259 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street early this morning.

Among his letters was this one to the President:

"Mr. Roosevelt—Don't forget King Alfonso; I'd like to hear him tell how it feels to have a bomb thrown at your while in an open carriage with your wife. We will have it out in Spanish and Italian. No, I don't smoke any of his cigarettes.

"PINTO."

Stanton and Melvor went into the telephone office to send a telegram and in the desk there found an incoherent message addressed to Lieutenant Petrosino, of the Detective bureau, in which the writer spoke of an action against his mother's relatives.

On a desk nearby was another to the lieutenant asking him to furnish the writer a revolver. The clerk told the detectives they had been written by a man who had been visiting the place for a fortnight and that he would probably be back again.

At half-past two o'clock the man returned and proceeded to write a letter to Rear-Admiral Evans, advising that Dewey and Mark Twain be on hand to watch the naval manoeuvres.

When the man had finished the letter he refused to give any information concerning himself to Melvor and demanded that he be taken to headquarters if there was any doubt as to his right to be at large.

At headquarters a large number of letters were found, but nothing to establish his identity. Beyond saying that he sawed wood for a living and his name was Cummings, he would tell nothing.

CAT ADOPTS YOUNG RAT

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—"Sid," a big Maltese cat at the headquarters of the Ashland Fire Company, in East Orange, has adopted a little three-day-old rat, and is caring for it with her own kittens.

"Sid" has a family which she is nursing in a box. Saturday a fireman unearthed the little rat and placed it near the box of the cat with the expectation that "Sid" would take it for a meal.

Instead the cat took the little creature carefully in her mouth and placed it in the box with her kittens.

Yesterday morning when the usual breakfast was passed to "Sid," it was discovered that the cat still had her little charge, and apparently considered it one of her family. The cat has always been considered a vicious monser.

SLEEP BROKEN BY ITCHING ECZEMA

Skin of Whole Body Covered for a Year—Awful Itching Kept Sufferer Awake Half the Night—Tried All Kinds of Remedies but They Had No Effect.

CUTICURA REMEDIES A PERFECT SUCCESS

"I wish to let you know that I have used one set of Cuticura Remedies—one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura, but two vials of Cuticura Resolvent Pills—which cost me a dollar and twenty-five cents in all. For a year I have had what they call eczema. I had an itching all over my body, and when I would retire for the night it would keep me awake half the night, and the more I would scratch, the more it would itch. I tried all kinds of remedies, but could get no relief. A friend of mine told me to try the Cuticura Remedies which I did, and am very glad I tried them, for I was completely cured. If any of my friends should be troubled with the same disease, I will cheerfully recommend the Cuticura Remedies, and if I know any one who wants to know how I cured myself, I shall be glad to tell them. # Fortune Teller's Prophecy Sends Girls in Panic From Mill

Miss Susie Bateman of Water street, Wakefield, one of the girls who took no chances and stayed at home.

Fair Operatives in Terror Quit Spinning Machines for Safety of Home.

Fearful Explosion in Big Wakefield Factory Due To-day, Said Palmist.

Panic reigns to-day in the big mill of the Harvard knitting plant at Wakefield, and the management expects that at the slightest unusual occurrence the 650 girls employed there will rush in a headlong stampede to the street.

'All the girls showed up for work to-day," said C. A. Winship, senior proprietor, "but they are working under tremendous nerve tension, and we don't know but that they make a wild rush away from their posts at any moment. We have not been able to learn what girl started the story that a palmist predicted a boiler explosion in the mill to-day, or who the palmist was. Of course the story is absurd and was probably started as a joke. But most of the girls, while they realize that their fears are ridiculous, have not been able to keep their nerves steady."

On every machine is an emergency button. In case of accident this will stop the machinery if pressed. Foremen and the bravest girls are walking the floor behind the young women and watching closely the most excitable, for fear that some nervous girl may start a panic by putting a finger to the button.

Sunday afternoon one of the girls employed at the Harvard mills went to a fortune teller in one of the neighboring towns to have her palm read.

The fortune teller, among other things, told the girl that the mill where she was employed would shut down on August 24 for a few days, but before that day, on Wednesday, August 21, a terrible explosion would occur there—that the boiler in the engine room had three large cracks in it.

The young lady, whose name none of the girls will disclose, at first took the matter as a huge joke and laughingly told her chum about it.

However, it is known that the mill is to shut down on August 21 for a few minor repairs, and that in a few weeks a new boiler is to be installed.

After thinking these facts over the chum decided to also consult the fortune teller, and, strange to say, she was told the same story in regard to the explosion. She added that the machinery would stop on two different occasions previous to the explosion.

Beginning to get excited, the girls sent another friend to interview the fortune teller, and when, for the third time, the death warning was given the girls were very much excited.

Of course the news spread quickly among the 600 girls, and yesterday the excitement was at fever heat and all were discussing the all important topic.

Yesterday afternoon the machinery stopped for a few minutes and created a panic throughout the mill. Girls screeched, grew pale, stopped work and some ran out into the street. It was nearly an hour before order could be restored.

Little work was done during the remainder of the afternoon, and many of the girls declared they would not work to-day.

A petition was sent to Mrs. Bolt, one of the proprietors of the mill, asking her to shut down the mill on Wednesday, but she declared that the girls were foolish and refused to comply.

Joseph Hughes, the engineer, when interview by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, said that he had intended to start on his vacation yesterday, but that the girls made such a fuss that he is obliged to stay till after Wednesday.

The Harvard mills are located on Albion street, and there they turn out the famous Harvard underwear.

WOBURN GIRL, SHOT IN MAINE, DYING

PITTSFIELD, Me., Aug. 21.—To-day Miss Caroline Spencer of Woburn lies in a critical condition from wounds received by the accidental discharge of a small hunting rifle. Mrs. Spencer picked up a rifle and passed it to one of her friends, when it discharged, the bullet entering Miss Spencer's right breast.

E. GERRY BROWN IS CHOICE OF JOHN P. FEENEY

Endorsed for Lieutenant Governor by Democratic State Committee Head.

In a statement which he gave out last night Chairman John P. Feeney of the Democratic State Committee declares in favor of E. Gerry Brown as the nominee of the party for the Lieutenant-Governorship.

Mr. Brown is the logical candidate, Mr. Feeney says.

Of the two candidates mentioned for Lieutenant-Governor, Ex-Senator George A. Schofield and E. Gerry Brown, which would be your choice?" Mr. Feeney was asked.

"Well, I can answer that question quickly enough. My choice for Lieutenant-Governor is E. Gerry Brown, and if he isn't given the unanimous indorsement of the Democratic convention I shall think that the representatives of the democracy have indeed gone wrong."

"But who will finance Mr. Brown's campaign?"

"Ah, there you touch upon a matter which those who would turn Mr. Brown away deem to be the paramount issue in a political campaign."

"Let the convention nominate Mr. Brown and there will be no trouble about the rest."

"But wouldn't Mr. Schofield represent the labor vote as well as Mr. Brown?"

"No, sir. Mr. Brown has been identified with the labor men for years. Threee-quarters of the Democratic vote is a labor vote."

CHILD HEROINE SAVES FAMILY

NEW YORW, Aug. 21.—Braving death to give the alarm that a burglar was attempting to kill her mother and was threatening her small brother and sister, eight-year-old Bertha Weldner to-day proved herself a heroine and saved her relatives and their property.

The burglar forced his way into the home of Mrs. Ella Weldner, while the mother and her three children were asleep. Drs. Wedner awoke and jumped out of bed to grapple with him, but was overpowered and the man strangled her to stop her cries. With a knife he threatened the children with death if they made a sound.

But little Bertha defied his threats, ran out in the hall, and her shouts awakened the other tenants. The burglar, seeing himself balked, escaped.

WOMEN FIGHT FIRES TO SAVE LITTLE HOMES

BUZZARDS BAY, Aug. 21.—After nearly eighty hours of fighting, the residents along the cape districts are this morning battling bravely with the fierce forest fires which are sweeping toward their little homes, threatening to wipe out both lives and property.

At midnight it looked like a victory for the brave village fire fighters, but as the early morning dawned a fresh wind blew up and rekindled the dying flames and there is but little hope held out of saving the villages of Monument Beach, Bourne, Bourneville, Sagamore, Mashpee and Sandwich.

The women of the towns have also taken up the fight and are working desperately beside their husbands and sons in the almost useless task to conquer the flames.

Thousands of acres of young timber land has been laid waste at Bourne and despite the fact that back trees were started and wide trenches thrown up, the flames swept across into Sandwich and instead of one fire, the tired workers had two to cope with.

The men are greatly handicapped by loss of sleep and nourishment, and the heavy black smoke is blinding as well as suffocating, and the fire fighters are forced to wear moist rags over their faces while at work.

Every available man and boy is being pressed into service, and over one hundred Italian and Portuguese laborers employed on the Cape canal were put to work fighting the flames and did excellent work.

Relief is in sight, however, for this morning word was received that a force of half a hundred men was on its way to aid the stricken villagers.

The same district now burning was devastated by fire in 1888, but that was never at any point so great as the fire now existing, and the loss will wipe out the livelihood of many of the prosperous, as well as of the poor.

BRINGS IN $5,630 WORTH OF MACKEREL

The fishing schooner Thomas J. Carroll, Captain Herbert Thompson, came into T Wharf to-day, bringing one of the highest-priced cargoes in years. She had 160 barrels of salt mackerel, 4,000 large fresh mackerel and 15,000 small. The entire load sold for $5,630. The crew will receive $225 each for three weeks' work.

SAGACIOUS HORSE DEAD.

Frank, the big gray, known to every resident of Brookline as the most sagacious horse in the district, was found dead early to-day on the first floor of the Chase Express Company's stable. He had fallen through a scuttle from the third floor.

40 GERMANS DEAD IN HOTTENTOT WAR

CAPETOWN, Aug. 21.—A decisive defeat has been administered to a strong German force by Morengo, the Hottentot chieftain, in Southwest Africa, according to a report received to-day. Between thirty and forty Germans are said to have been killed, and scores wounded.

17,010 MACHINISTS READY TO STRIKE

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—A meeting will be held this afternoon by the New York and New ersey Trades Association to determine whether 17,000 machinists in New York will go on strike to-morrow. The men demand an increase in wages of twenty-five cents a day.

HISGEN IS GIVEN BIG WELCOME

Engages Bromberg in Exciting Colloquy at Meeting of Wage Earners' Club.

POTTS' SPEECH A FEATURE

The most exciting gathering ever held in Roslindale developed from the first anniversary rally of the Ward 23 Wage-Earners' Club, in its headquarters, No. 27 Poplar street, last night.

Senator Edward J. Bromberg, a member of the club, in the midst of his speech, in which he was praising the Republican party as the great friend of the wage-earners' cause, was interrupted by Thomas L. Hisgen of Springfield, candidate for the Independence League nomination for governor, the guest of honor of the club, and was asked why he did not fight to a finish for the anti-injunction and the anti-monopoly bills if he is a friend of the wage-earner.

The question of Mr. Hisgen, injected into a very inspiring address about the glory of the Republican party, caused a sensation. Before the Senator could reply Mr. Hisgen followed up his question with another, as to why it was that, after fighting for two conference committees, Mr. Bromberg lined up with the other Republicans and voted against the bill. "Wasn't it because the party whip had cracked?" asked Mr. Hisgen.

Bromberg Tries to Explain.

Mr. Bromberg tried to explain that the bill would have gone to the next General Court even if the other conference committee had been called, and Mr. Hisgen asked if that was not what happened to it, after all, even lwth the policy of the Republicans in not appointing the committee.

Even then Mr. Bromberg tried to explain that the Republicans were as friendly to the bill as the Democrats, but Mr. Hisgen insisted in the most emphatic manner that the Senator had been whipped into line.

John M. Pease of Ward 21, secretary of the Wage Earners' Club of that ward, interrupted another eulogy of the Republican party (of which he was formerly a member) to inquire of Senator Bromberg why he voted against the resolution for the election of United States senators by the people. Mr. Bromberg said that he voted against it because the Democrats had made it a party issue.

Seeking for Glory.

"Then you put party above principle," said Mr. Pease.

Mr. Bromberg said that he did not allow the Democrats to steall all the credit for good legislation in the Senate.

Mr. Bromberg had hardly resumed his speech when a man in the audience asked if it was not a referendum that he had voted against, and Mr. Bromberg admitted that it was. He was asked if this was not a resolution asking for an expression of poinion from the people, and he admitted that it was, but he voted against it.

He was asked if the resolution had not been introduced by Senator Mitchell, a Democrat, unanimously reported by the committee on constitutional amendments which was strongly Republican in its make-up, and that if later the Republicans did not line up against it. He admitted these facts and the only explanation he could give was that the Republicans were opposed to it because Senators Cassidy and Linehan had favored it.

Question of Broken Pledge.

He was asked if he had not taken the pledge of the Wage Earners' Club, and said that he had. He was asked if one of the principles of the Wage Earners was not a plank in favor of the referendum, and if another was not the election of United States Senators by the people, and he admitted it.

John E. Potts, chairman of the Wage Earners' Central Club of Boston also took Senator Bromberg in hand during his speech, and very pointedly told him that he had placed his fealty to the Republican party and the orders of the Republican bosses above his pledge to the Wage Earners, and severely criticized him for his attitude on the referendum and the popular election of United States Senators, which he had pledged his word to the Wage Earners to support.

Hisgen Opposes Merger.

The address by Thomas L. Hisgen was the chief event of the evening. He was given a great ovation when introduced. He described his fight with Standard Oil and outlined the issues for which he would fight as a candidate for governor, dwelling particularly upon his belief that the present injunction law should be modified. He expressed his opposition to the proposed merging of the big railroads of the State and his uncompromising opposition to government by commission. He said that he favored the election of commissions by the people, if commissions are to continue.

Mr. Hisgen aroused the greatest enthusiasm of the evening by saying that when he is elected to office the people would know just where he stands on each and every question at any time, day or night.

Potts Accuses Cole.

Chairman Potts of the Wage Earners strongly denounced the recess committee now sitting at the State House, and accused Speaker Cole of having treated labor unfairly and broken his promise to appoint to the committee such men as organized labor should select.

Ex-Representative John A. Coulthurst aroused enthusiasm by his declaration that it is time to drive the lobbyists out of the State House and padded payroll fakirs out of City Hall.

The other speakers were Representatives John J. Conway and A. S. Parker Weeks, Junius T. Auerbach, treasurer of the Independence League, and Councilman Carruth. The chairman of the meeting was Edwin Butler, president of the Ward 23 Wage Earners' Club.

"The Standard Oil have tried to steal our trade by offering to give away oil to the dealers, and are selling now at seven cents a gallon, while we have to get nine cents. The trade is sticking to us and we do not fear them in their attacks in this direction.

Party Label No Drawback.

"But in legislation it is different. I am no politician but I am in politics, and so is the Standard Oil. It makes no difference to them which party label a man wears. As long as corrupt legislators are elected they will buy them, and as long as the wage earners elect men who will sell themselves, just so long will corporate influence dominate the political and economical affairs of the State and nation.

"One of the moves of monopoly is this merger bill, which there is a great danger will be passed next session of the Legislature. The merger is a strike at every form of independent business, and if effected will so securely fasten the hands of monopoly about the neck of fair Massachusetts that only a gigantic struggle will ever free her from its grasp.

"It must never be allowed to go on our statute books. If I have the honor to be the standard bearer of the Independence League and be elected Governor of this sovereign State, all its sovereignty will be preserved if it lies in my power to preserve it, and the merge rbill will never receive my signature.

"I am absolutely opposed to government by injunction, either of labor or capital, and believe that the surest way to protect the people through their judges is to have the people elect their judges by direct vote.

"But vital as are the merger and injunction laws, equally vital is the anti-monopoly and anti-discrimination laws. The Standard Oil reigns supreme in the East, wherever illuminating oil is concerned, but it does not in the western part of Massachusetts.

"Our battling and their desire to ruin us fixes a price out there of seven to nine cents per gallon. You men of Boston and Roslindale are forced to pay twelve to fourteen cents for the same oil.

"Why is it?

Rob One to Fight Another.

"Is eastern Massachusetts being used to ruin our Independent Oil Company? Are not the prices you are paying a war tax which furnishes the Standard Oil with money, or such a profit that they can sell at ruinous price to kill us and still the average profit for the State will range high?

"I, was sponsor for the anti-discrimination bill, and until that bill becomes a law I shall be in politics. After it becomes a law and prices are adjusted we can give up selling oil and put all our time into the grease business.

"This is the most vital campaign which the State of Massachusetts has ever waged, and I hope and pray that the wage earners, the hard working men of the State, the men who use their hands and earn their living by the sweat of their brow, the men to whom every cent is a saving or a loss, will get into the battle and fight.

"Fight for your own rights, do not be branded as mere party men, but think of your wives and children, of their future and of your own. Make this a personal fight and work the downfall of the man you know has deceived you and exact a pledge from every man you elect.

"From now on, as in the past, I am ready to state my position on everything, and if, as Governor of Massachusetts, I am requested to state my position, you will not find me hesitating, but willing and anxious that the men who have given me their votes and elected me to office should know everything they want to know."

THOMAS L. HISGEN

"No Merger Bill Will Ever Be Signed by Me"--Hisgen

"IF I have the honor to be the standard bearer of the Independence League and be elected Governor of this sovereign State, all its sovereignty will be preserved if it lies in my power to preserve it, and the merger bill will never receive my signature."—From speech of Thomas L. Hisgen, of Springfield, at Ward 23 Wage Earners' Club.

ARMED POSSE NOW IN HUNT FOR PETSOLD

Alleged Slayer of Little Helen Pond Believed to Have Been Seen.

PASCOAG, R. I., Aug. 21.—Armed men are hunting today the woods in the vicinity of Sucker Pond for Ernest A. Petsold, the alleged slayer of little Helen Brown of Burrillville.

Walter Tucker and a man named Benoit believe that they saw Petsold near the pond yesterday, and Benoit says Petsold has a gun.

Believing that Petsold will kill anyone who tries to capture him, a posse which left for the Sucker Pond woods today had orders to shoot him if he is discovered and makes any resistance.

The posse is in charge of Andrew Higgins, who declares that he and his men will take Petsold dead or alive.

A rein of terror has existed in the village since the Brown child was murdered.

After nightfall none venture forth from their houses, except able-bodied men, and these equipped with either pistols or good stout sticks in event they meet the man who, they believe, driven to desperation by the strenuous pursuit now being engaged in by the town officials, may make an attempt to molest his former neighbors, many of whom have been the most ardent of his hunters.

Women in Terror.

Cottage doors and windows that have swung wide open for many years were last night locked and bolted, and even then mothers went to bed to the lightest of slumbers, starting up at every sound in fear that the outlaw might be entering their homes.

Closely guarded by armed men under the leadership of William F. Eddy, Mrs. Brown, mother of the dead child, remains constantly under cover at the Eddy house in terror lest Petsold makes an attempt to take her life, as she claims he has threatened to do many times.

The mother of little Helen believes that, had she accepted the invitation extended to her in Providence last Wednesday by Petsold, to visit the home of his mother, she now would be lying at the bottom of some lake or pond, with Petsold dead nearby, as a result of a murder and suicide.

Meanwhile carefully laid plans of the town police, led by Sergeant Edward Collins, are being made to assure the capture of the man who has terrorized the community as never before in its history, and these are expected to result in his arrest, possibly to-day, unless he, driven to bay, commits suicide, as many of his neighbors believe he will do.

Nearly every garden patch in the vicinity of the Petsold home, on the lonely Mapleville road, was guarded by men with guns and pistols last night, while the McNally cottage had its garrison of special police with guns.

Watch Night Haunt.

Town Sergeant Abraham L. Hawkins of the neighboring town of Gloucester is in command of a quartette of men who are spending the nights at the Battye house, an abandoned farming estate which lies about one mile from the McNally shanty and the place where, it is believed, Petsold has been sleeping for several nights past, creeping into it at night and as stealthily leaving there for his undiscovered hiding place in the woods by day. Signs of human habitation have been found at the deserted old farmhouse by the men under Town Sergeant Collins and Petsold's capture at that place, unless he has got wind of the occupation of the structure by his pursuers, expected within a night or so, unless he turns up around the McNally cottage.

PRETTY GIRL OF MYSTERY DEFENDS TOURAINE THIEF

Despite Her Efforts for His Release, Kirk Jones Is Given Two Years.

A beautiful woman of mystery figures in the case of "Robert H. Williams," said by the police to be Kirk Jones, a notorious erokk with a long prison record, and in the Superior Court today she attracted great attention from officials and spectators. With her was an elderly, refined looking woman, dressed in black, but there is not the slightest knowledge as to the identity of either. Although the younger woman engaged James H. Vahey as attorney to defend Williams, the lawyer says he does not know who she is. She has carefully guarded the secret of her home and relationship with the prisoner even from the man she hired as his counsel.

The mysterious woman was seen first in court yesterday. She attracted attention at once because of her good looks, stylish dress and manner. She looked and acted like a woman of wealth and culture. She was dressed in a light-colored striped silken gown and wore a modish Summer hat upon a mass of wavy blonde hair.

Veil Concealed Face.

But her face was concealed by a thick veil. When she came to court to-day, she did not wear the veil, and it was surmised that she might be twenty-seven or eight years old.

Williams pleaded guilty of breaking into the apartments of Miss Lillian F. Platt in the Hotel Houraine on August 2, and it is said by the police that he is famous as a hotel thief and pickpocket. Some of his crimes have been so sensational as to make him famous in the underworld.

When he stood up before Judge Schofield to receive the sentence of two years in the House of Correction which was imposed there was a smile on his face and his manner was almost jaunty. Not so with the mysterious young woman—her face was drawn and tense and sadness had robbed her cheeks of color.

Converses With Prisoner.

She and the elder woman were given a chance to talk with Williams in private for a few moments after he was sentenced. Then the women left the courthouse, while the man who had been the object of so much devotion was taken away to a prison cell.

When Miss Platt discovered him in her Touraine apartment she aroused the hotel by her screams. The intruder made a desperate effort to escape. He ran down five flights of stairs, but was captured in the office by Manager Hart.

When the woman of mystery was questioned by Attorney Vahey, she said:

"I am Myrtle E. Moore. That is all I care to say about myself."

DANCE TO AID HULL CHURCH

Over 500 persons attended a whist party and dance at the Hotel Pemberton at Hull last night, which was arranged by the Rev. Hugh J. Mulligan of Hingham for the benefit of the little Summer church at Hull, St. Mary's-by-the-Sea.

The money raised last night is to be devoted to lifting the mortgage on the church. George H. Page, proprietor of the Pemberton, gave the use of his ball room and card rooms for the party.

The affair was in charge of the following general committee:

Mrs. J. J. O'Callaghan, chairman, Mrs. James H. Hickey, Mrs. C. W. Reddie, Mrs. Edward MacHugh, Mrs. Sylvester Whalen, Mrs. James H. Morrison, Mrs. John B. Fitzpatrick, Mrs John H. # Creation's Mysterious Transformation Scenes Have Paragon Guests Puzzled

Miss Delia M. Gaudreau, Boston American "Red Dollar Sign Girl" Riding "Eph," Paragon Park's Baby Elephant.

Baby Elephant "Eph" Touches Everyone Within Reach of His Ever Busy Trunk.

A forty-cent free ticket for Paragon Park in next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN, that is the programme for the entertainment of SUNDAY AMERICAN readers.

Besides admission to the park there will be Creation, where a beautiful woman is changed into a grinning skeleton and conversely, and where in a wonderful fairy grotto a huge lily, surrounded with mythological creatures unfolds and exhibits the fairy queen, who disappears in the most mysterious way.

Then there is the Theatre Comique with high-class moving pictures and a famous English singer. This show is equal to the best of its kind, and the reserved seats are free so far as they will accommodate the coupon crowds next Monday and Tuesday.

The Airships is the fourth coupon, a huge Circle Swing, where you go round and round, higher and higher, and experience the very sensation of a voyage in a veritable airship.

The open-air features of Paragon Park are the most extraordinary, including the world champion high diver, the "Human Spider," on his rope, and Sadie Knowlton and her Dare-Devil-Dip. Sadie Knowlton dislocated her shoulder on Monday, but declares when the acute stage is passed she will continue her act, only she will be more careful how she alights in the lagoon after her hundred-foot ride, and fifty-foot toss into the air.

The baby elephant, Eph, grows daily more intelligent and park patrons are getting as reconciled to his funny moves as they would to an affectionate little dog. Eph's motives are mainly selfish and gastronomic, his main search being for tidbits, and he doesn't hesitate to rob old and young alike, if they possess corn-cake or candy within the reach of his little trunk.

Among Eph's eccentricities is a habit of shaking off any of the boys who essay to ride on his back. Several have been tumbled to the plank walk within the fortnight, and it has become quite as much of a game to try to ride the baby elephant as the traditional bucking broncho.

Perhaps the one individual who successfully rode the baby elephant about the park was Miss Delia M. Gaudreau of Lynn, to whom Eph offered not one single objection, even when they were taken by snap-shot together for the BOSTON AMERICAN.

Within the week Manager Dodge has been approached by those who would like to see a general swimming contest arranged in the lagoon in classes, amateurs or professionals and of either sex, and he thinks quite favorably of it, remembering the success attained by the BOSTON AMERICAN'S cup swimming races, held off City Point last season and the interest created in them. The matter is under advisement and an announcement is likely to follow at any time.

JUST LOOK AT THIS FREE TICKET OFFER FOR NEXT SUNDAY

The next SUNDAY AMERICAN free ticket for Wonderland will be a screamer, including the Blake Animal Circus, variously called the "Hippodrome," the "Pony-Monkey-Dog Circus," and holding as its supreme attraction the great mule "Maud," to ride which elusive beast you are offered a dollar for a minute.

That is, if you can ride Maud a minute you get a dollar. Few do it, because she is greased lightning, a living exemplification of the great comic supplement mule, on exhibition for eight long years and good for thirty more, one of the most valued attractions in any animal show.

Then there is Happy Hooligan, the $10,000 monkey with the human brain, who holds conversations with Manager Washburn and is such a mechanic that he can do most anything with his tricycle, besides playing doctor and fixing up a sick pony during the show.

The high diving dog, trick dogs, tight with dogs, boxing dogs, ponies so pretty and bright that one feels benefited to see them, and every other thing comes back the memory of "Maud," the mule.

This will be a part of next week's free ticket to Wonderland. The other coupons will be admission to the park and its new arenic performances and the velvet coaster.

This week Monday and Tuesday large crowds thronged Wonderland and rode in the airships and the velvet coaster. Next week the number will easily be trebled because of the tremendous popularity of the Pony-Monkey-Dog Circus and Maud.

FREE TO READERS OF SUNDAY AMERICAN

Revere Beach is making preparations for its annual carnival. Some $4,000 is already subscribed, and the crowning features are being rehearsed daily in the ballroom at Wonderland. Revere Beach is having a tremendous season. Twelve of the leading amusement places on the boulevard and avenues are receiving SUNDAY AMERICAN half-fare tickets this week.

Next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN will publish another list permitting the holder to see $1.25 worth of best features for 60 cents. The attractions are:

Rollaway Skating Rink, Three-Way-Figure-Eight Roller Coaster, Musical Railway, Auto-Go-Round, Fairyland Theatre, Hurley's Hurdlers, Palace Merry-Go-Round, Rough Rider Hippodrome, Theatre Comique, Journey to the North Pole, Automatic Bowling Alleys and Mystic Rill.

Canobie Lake Park, where business is booming every day, announces the free tickets to be published in next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN will be for the Theatre, Laughing Gallery, House of Mirth and Box Ball Alleys, a total of twenty-five cents.

SOCIETY WAR RAGING OVER PRINCE'S VISIT

Newport Women in Bitter Struggle for Laurels in Entertaining Foreigner.

MRS. FISH SPRINGS COUP

By Cholly Knickerbocker.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 21.—The competition between Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, Mrs. Ogden Mills and other leaders of the Newport colony for the laurels in the entertainment of Prince Wilhelm of Sweden, when he arrives here to-morrow, has reached a white heat.

Something of a coup de etat has been sprung by Mrs. Fish. She has permitted it to leak out at the last moment that she has acquired a knowledge of the Swedish tongue, and that she will welcome the Prince in his own language.

The Prince speaks English fluently, but the compliment of being addressed in his native tongue by an American hostess is not one that will be readily forgotten.

The realization of this has spread consternation in the camps of some of Mrs. Fish's rivals.

Mrs. Fish Takes Up Language.

It seems that a distinguished Swede, who has been sojourning in Newport, volunteered to coach Mrs. Fish in the rudiments of his language, and that she has a typewritten copy of the welcome she is to extend to the Prince when he enters Crossways for his first social function in Newport.

When she is not engaged in planning the dinner and luncheon for the Prince, she is studying this verbal bon mot assiduously.

An awkward clash between Mrs. Ogden Mills and Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs has already occurred in preparing for the titled foreigner's reception. Mrs. Ogden Mills, as everyone knows, is to give the Prince a dinner on the evening of his arrival.

Some one suggested to Mrs. Oelrichs that it would be a capital idea to keep the Prince moving after the Mills dinner, and that a vaudeville entertainment in the white and gold ball room of the Oelrichs marble palace on the cliffs was, beyond all doubt, the proper caper.

Corners Nation's Flags.

Mrs. Mills, being a Livingston, adheres to the formal entertainments of old Newport, and vaudeville is not one of them. Mrs. Mills was indignant. Result—Mrs. Oelrichs cancelled the vaudeville acts.

To-day Mrs. Fish gave a small luncheon, having Mrs. Ogden Mills, Mrs. Richard Gambrill, Mrs. George Peabody Wetmore and Mrs. Edward J. Berwind to talk over their plans for the entertainment of Prince Wilhelm, a subject that has preference over all else in the cottage settlement.

Mrs. Fish has secured all the silk flags of Sweden which were in the Newport shops and has sent to New York a special messenger for additional flags, as have the other hostesses.

Secret service men have already arrived, who will guard the Prince all the while he is on shore at Newport. Prince Wilhelm, with the Swedish minister from Washington is sailing to-day from Jamestown for Newport on the cruiser Flygia, and en route he will exchange wireless messages with some of his Newport friends.

Prince Due To-morrow.

Early to-morrow morning Rear Admiral John Morrell, who is the commandant of the second naval defence district, will board the Flygia and pay his respects to the Prince.

The Flygia will fire a national salute of twenty-one guns upon her arrival, and the naval battery will fire a salute for the commanding officer of the Flygia, Captain Lingren, who rates seven guns.

Fort Adams battery will return the national salute fired by the Flygia with twenty-one guns.

A programme for a sight-seeing trip of the Prince and his suite includes a visit to the naval and army stations, Casino and Casino Club, reading room, golf club, where he will take a hand at bridge whist; Bailey's Beach, where a bath house will be placed at his disposal; a spin around the ocean drive, the farms of Alfred and Reginald Vanderbilt, and clam bake clubs.

OLD ORCHARD FIRE CLAIMS THIRD VICTIM

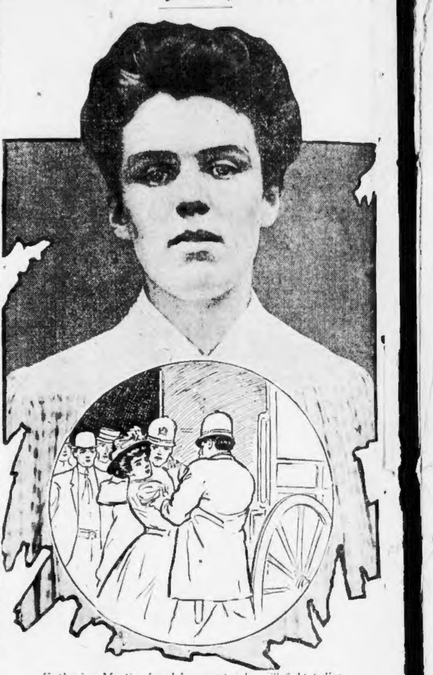
BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 21.—Rev. Rufus H. Jones, rector of the Saco Trinity Episcopal Church, who was struck by a soda siphon while watching the conflagration at Old Orchard Thursday night and terribly injured, is dead at Trull Hospital, Biddeford. He is the third victim of the big fire.

Girl Dragged by Police Through Street to Sue For Unjustified Arrest



Katherine Martin, freed by court, who will fight police.

Declaring that no innocent girl is safe on the streets of Boston if the policemen of the city are to be allowed to insult her recklessly and made untrue accusations that would horrify any respectable woman, Miss Katherine Martin, who has just been freed of a serious accusation by Judge Duff in Boston Municipal Court, threatens to bring suit against the policemen who arrested and humiliated her.

Frank Fallon, who was with the young woman when arrested, and who was discharged from a complaint of profanity entered by the police, is equally indignant. Counsel for the two Attorney Cornelius P. Sullivan, hints that the matter is not ended with the discharge of the two, but that further legal action may follow.

Miss Martin, hardly recovered from the hysteria which overpowered her in the House of Detention, said:

"I am afraid to go out of the house now for fear some one might harm me. There they marched me, through the streets, before the gaze of the bystanders. I, a girl who never harmed anyone, was forced to ride in the police wagon used to take drunkards and thugs about the city. When I reached the station house I asked to have my friends notified in order that I could obtain bail, but I was placed in that dark wagon called a van, with a number of other women, and taken to the House of Detention. I was placed in a cell.

"I could stand the strain no longer. I broke down and sobbed for an hour. I was finally released on bail.

"Even when I appeared in court Officer Harris sneered at me. I told my story to Judge Duff. He believed me. I was discharged.

"If innocent women walk along the street and can be insulted by policemen as I was, it is about time something was done."

The court hearing for Miss Martin and Fallon proved one of the most complete downfalls of flimsy police evidence that has come before any city judge. Sergeant Munroe and Patrolmen Harris and Gilman of East Dedham street station left the court room much more subdued than when they came in. The spectators, who had been disgusted with the attitude of the police, congratulated Miss Martin particularly. But the girl got away as quickly as she could. She had faced the court ordeal bravely, telling her story to the judge frankly, without impertinence. After she was discharged she murmured "Thank you" and hastened from the scene of such agonizing experience.

UNKNOWN SUICIDE IN FRANKLIN PARK

The police, as well as the hospital authorities, are to-day trying to establish the identity of a man who committed suicide in Franklin Park late yesterday afternoon. Among some pension papers found on the man was one bearing the name Charles Emory, but another bore the name of Clark Eldredge. The body is now at the City Hospital morgue.

HUB FINANCE COMMISSION DEFIES MAYOR

Despite the attempts of close friends of Mayor Fitzgerald to switch them from their present line of inquiry, members of the Finance Commission announce that they will continue to confine their investigation for the present to those questions which they consider are timely. The underground attempts from City Hall to dissuade the Democratic members of the commission from pursuing a line of inquiry, which, the members of the Mayor's political family tell the commissioners, is seriously embarrassing the Mayor, have been wasted.

The commission will proceed on the course upon which it set out, but will exercise due carefulness, for Mayor Fitzgerald, the commission believes, according to a statement made by a member to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day, is only awaiting an opportunity to attack the commission and accuse it of playing politics, thus attempting to discount any report which it may make reflecting upon his administration of city affairs.

"The commission will continue to take up those questions which are peculiarly timely," said this member to the AMERICAN reporter. "Some of our work may be properly criticised as being political, because of the effect it may have on the coming city campaign. It is political only because of its timeliness. What use would it do us to take up such questions as the reduction of the water loan and the additions to the sealers of weights and measures department after they have been disposed of?

"Friends of the Mayor have approached me, stating that our present line of inquiry is very embarrassing to the Mayor and asking that the commission desist from its investigation of political questions and get down to the 'real work.'

"Political questions, in their minds, include the hold-up of the sealers' appointments and the suggestion that the water loan be reduced.

"The 'real work' of the commission, as the Mayor's friends see it, consists in a study of purely academic questions, such as any body of political economists in the country might properly discuss at any time. The Mayor's friends would like to see us get away from subjects that may hurt the administration and discuss such subjects as the proper division of loans, inside and outside the debt limit; the question whether the present method of accumulating sinking funds and issuing loans annually is based on sound financial principles; the subject of Boston's share of the metropolitan burdens, a favorite theme of the Mayor, and other similar questions that would have no particular bearing upon the present administration.

"The commission will continue its policy. When the commission sees a chance of saving money to the city, it is going to act. No question of partisanship has entered into the work of the commission thus far."

REASONS FOR NEW UNION OF INSURANCE MEN

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Life insurance policy-holders, who are also trades unionists or sympathizers with unionism, are having some difficulty these days in determining how they can help the new organization of insurance agents without endangering the safety of their policy contracts. Many have formed the impression that this organization is antagonistic to the companies, but such is not the case. The objects of the organization is to establish a spirit of fraternity among insurance workers of the different companies, something that has not previously existed; to endeavor to eliminate a great deal of the unfair competition and misrepresentation that has previously existed; to raise the public confidence and respect for insurance workers, which has previously been reduced to some extent by unscrupulous individuals who have been engaged in the business from time to time; to be more consistent in our relationship with industrial policy holders, who are mostly trade unionists, that they may have the satisfaction of knowing that they are doing business with those who support the principles of unionism. These are the principle purposes of our organization as it at present exists.

May Force Aggressive Policy.

However, there is danger that the present attitude of some of the big life insurance companies in their opposition to our organization may drive a majority of our members to adopt a less conservative and peaceful course if they persist in their active opposition. In conclusion, I would say to all those who sympathize with our organization: Do not endanger the safety of your policies in your effort to help us, but, in so far as you may wth safety, insist upon your collector, and especially your solicitor, being a member of the International Union of Insurance Employes.

A. P. HICKEY, General President.

"OCEANS OF KISSES" IN RICH MAN'S LETTERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Paula Klippenburg, the pretty young Viennese, tripped—she fairly danced—from the detention pen on Ellis Island yesterday, where she has been a prisoner for several days pending the fight that is being made against her deportation. The actress was released on $1,500 bail.

Horace E. Miller, the wealthy Newark man, whom the young woman crossed the ocean to sue for breach of promise, and who made the affidavit declaring that Miss Klippenburg was amenable to the immoral alien act, is absent from his home, and his wife and family simply say that he is in the country on his annual vacation.

The release of Miss Klippenburg was ordered by the Department of Commerce and Labor at Washington.

In support of her contention she brought with her a bundle containing more than one hundred love letters, which she says were written to her during a five year courtship. The letters are extremely affectionate, and in the following, which was given to the American, and was signed "Heinrich," Miss Klippenburg explained that she had first been told his name was "Heinrich Holbein," but that she later discovered his real name. In Miss Klippenburg's collection there are letters of more recent date purporting to have been signed "Horace E. Miller."

Following is a copy of one of the letters:

New York, Sept. 14, 1903.
Wolgeboren Fraulein Paula Von Klippenburg, Wien, I Bez, Austria.
Pestalozzigasse 6th 1:

My Dearest Paula:

Another week has gone, and I am continually thinking about you, how you are, if you are well, and what you are doing—if you think of me as often and as much as I do of you and if you love me ever the same.

Dearest sweetheart, there is a saying "absence makes the heart grow fonder." I don't know if this is true in all cases (is it true in yours?), but I know you are ever in my dreams.

Your loving letter written to me the second day after your return to Vienna (August 26), the day I sailed from England, was received by me three days ago and the maidenhair fern you sent to me in the letter I think was from your room, from the flowers you had before we went away to Neuremberg. Am I right, dear sweetheart? How I wish you were here. Can you imagine how I long for you and your love and sweet affection?

You said I might write to you in English and that you would send one of my English letters translated into German back to me, so I would know you understood. Now, dear sweetheart, tell me true if it is too much trouble for you to understand the English, for I would not have you grow tired of my letters and rather have you say if the English is too difficult. Then I will write always in German.

I am very well and try to work so hard that I may be happy, but it is lonesome here without you, and I miss you terribly. Have you got your picture, and is it good? I shall look forward to the pleasure of receiving a picture of you.

With oceans of love and kisses upon kisses, I am, dearest sweetheart, ever thine.

HEINRICH.

The letter was enclosed in an envelope addressed to Miss Klippenburg, and on the back of the envelope was written "Heinrich Holbein, Poste Restante (General Delivery), New York, U. S. A."

There are just as many letters written in German as in English.

MOROCCO ARMY DEFEATS MOORS

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Sultan's troops have defeated a great force of natives engaged in the present anti-foreign uprising, according to a dispatch to the Central News from Tangier.

The rebellious natives suffered great loss. Several of their villages were burned and looted. The tribesmen were completely routed and scattered by the loyal army.

Another attack on Casablanca has been defeated by the French, according to the same news agency.

HOLD MORGAN ON FALSE CHECK CHARGE

NORTH ADAMS, Aug. 21.—Conducting his own defense and showing knowledge of the law, Charles, or Clarence, Morgan, alleged forger and utterer of forged checks, who, it is claimed by the police, is wanted on over one hundred counts, created a most favorable impression in District Court. He held closely to the laws of evidence. At the end of the hearing Judge C. T. Phelps found probable cause and held him under $2,000 bonds on each of two counts.

3 HELD FOR $14 HOLD-UP

While walking along Charles street on his way home at an early hour to-day William Sweeney was set upon by three young men. While two of them pinned him to the ground the other relieved him of $14. The men ran up Cambridge street.

Sweeney reported the hold-up at the Joy street station. Two hours later the police arrested Brache [illegible], 16 years old, of No. 19 Clark street; Amlerto Fachett, 17, of No. 17 Morton street, and Joseph Guarante, 19, of No. 3 Thacher street, charged with the hold-up. They will be arraigned to-day.

CITY POINT LIFE GUARDS SAVE BOY

Lieutenant C. S. O. Morris and William A. Farr are the heroes of the day with the bathers at City Point and are modestly bearing the praises being showered upon them for their brave rescue of sixteen-year-old Daniel Smith, of 817 Broadway, last night. Smith had started out for a swim, but became exhausted and cried for help. The two men jumped into a boat and rowed out to the drowning lad and brought him ashore.

METEOR BADLY SCARED FISHERS

ROCHDALE, Aug. 21.—Albert Pike and Reuben Phillips, who were rudely awakened on a fishing trip Sunday morning by the meteor that brilliantly illuminated the sky, declare that it landed in Hogan's cove. At the time they sat awe-stricken in the boat, believing the huge meteor was going to snuff out their lives.

Phillips says they started for an all-night'l outing on the Rochdale pond. "I went fishing Saturday night—me and Phillips—up in the cove near Hogan's land. What I saw I wouldn't miss for $5.

"Why, a big string of fire shot out of the heaven like a shooting star; but, you know, it was nothing to be compared with an insignificant little thing like that.

"I thought for a second it was my last fishing trip," and I began to feel uneasy. Then it slid behind a lonely cloud, but it was out before it went in, it seemed, holding its spherical shape as it dashed out of sight.

"Phillips says he saw the fiery ball just before it went out of sight. It did look as if it struck on Hogan's land."

COUNCIL CHARY OF WATER LOAN

Mayor Fitzgerald will attempt to push through the City Council Monday the annual water loan which the finance commission has suggested be reduced from $300,000, the amount originally asked by the Mayor, to $75,000. The Aldermen hold a regular meeting Monday afternoon and the Mayor will call the Common Council in special session at that time.

The Mayor, who was quick to agree with the suggestion that the amount be reduced but who did not agree to the amount suggested by the commission, has not yet determined how much he will ask for. He has ordered City Engineer Jackson to make an estimate of the cost of the actual necessities in the way of construction of mains.

It is doubtful whether the Mayor will be able to get any loan for water main construction through the City Council. The experience with the big loan bill, in connection with the passage of which Superintendent of Streets Doyle is under indictment, has made the members of the City Council rather chary of loan bills. It will require nine votes in the Board of Aldermen and fifty in the Common Council to pass the loan bill.

BIG FIELD DAY FOR C. T. A. U.

The coming parade and field day to be held under the auspices of the Springfield Catholic Total Abstinence Union in the city of Worcester on Monday, September 2, will bring together the largest body of Catholic abstainers ever assembled in that city for the cause of moral reform and good government.

It is expected by the committee in charge that President Roosevelt will grace the occasion with his presence.

Many of the societies in Boston have voted to take part in the parade. St. Patrick's Total Abstinence and Literary Society of Roxbury will parade through the principal streets of Roxbury previous to the parade in Worcester. Each member will carry a Japanese parasol and will wear red, white and blue bouquets in the lapel of their coats.

ARCHDEACON TIFFANY DIES.

NARTHEAST HARBOR, Me., Aug. 21.—Charles Comfort Tiffany, D.D., for many years archdeacon of New York and prominent in Episcopal Church affairs, is dead of apoplexy. He had been retired from active work for some time.

MR. ROOSEVELT, LOOK AT THIS

WORCESTER, Aug. 21.—Just read this, Mr. Roosevelt:

Mrs. Calixte Credit, forty-one, has just given birth to her eighteenth child, although she has been married but twenty years.

In addition to her own children, fourteen of whom are still alive, Mrs. Credit has six adopted children, brothers and sisters of her husband who were left orphans soon after her marriage and whom she made legally her own.

DYNAMITE KILLS 112.

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—The Shantung Mining Company has received a cable message from Tsingtau announcing that an explosion of dynamite occurred underground in the Fangtse mine, resulting in two Germans and 110 Chinamen being killed.

GRANDMOTHER OF BURNED BOY DIES

Mrs. Katherine Murphy, who suffered severe burns Monday while trying to put out a fire caused by her five-year-old grandson, Thomas O'Neil, while playing with matches at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Annie O'Neil, 22 Vine street, Charlestown, died yesterday at the City Hospital relief station from her injuries. The child died at the same institution Monday afternoon.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST
Wholesale and Mail Order Liquor House

In nearly 50 years of dealing with the public we have never sold an inferior liquor nor exacted an unfair price.

GIVING the public a square deal for two generations has made this the largest and most successful wholesale and mail order liquor house in New England. We have sent out over one million packages of fine liquors into the six New England states, and there is not one customer that has not received full value for his money—the best value any liquor house has ever given.

A GREAT liquor business has been established and maintained on the excellent quality of our goods, sold at the lowest consistent prices. See our house, our goods and our service as they are, and you will acknowledge that we are entitled to the confidence of the public, which we have fairly won.

WE want your patronage on the basis of mutual interest. We will give you the best of liquors—and we know what good liquors are—at a fair—yes, at a low price. Write, 'phone or wire, and your expressman will be there with just what you order whenever you want it.

WHISKY
Callahan A
This special $3 a gallon whisky is a good, pure stimulant. It is the best whisky value at the price that can be purchased anywhere. It is sold at this remarkably low price to meet the demand for a low-priced article. It is a whisky sold on its merits without gift or premium of any kind.

WHISKY
Callahan AAAAA
Our special private stock $8 a gallon whisky is as "fine a piece of goods" as money can buy. There is nothing on sale in New England to equal it. The taste is delicious, pleasing and lasting. The aroma will bring back the memory of boyhood days in the country. May be too expensive as a beverage, but in the sick room a necessity.

Have That Girl of Yours Learn How to Earn Her Own Living

By Dorothy Dix.

> Those of us who see the seamy side of woman's life, know that there is nothing else on earth so pitiful as a middle-aged woman who is thrown suddenly on her own resources—and who has no resources.—DOROTHY DIX.

FINALLY, beloved, in settling the question of your daughter's education, include in it teaching her some specific way in which to make a living.

Probably she may never need to earn her own living, but, on the other hand, she may have to support herself and a sick husband and half a dozen children.

Nobody knows what changes the whirligig of fortune may bring to any one, but in any event, whether she is ever called upon or not to use her knowledge, the mere consciousness that she has this reserved power of independence in store will be a comfort and a pleasure to her every day of her life.

Those of us who see the seamy side of woman's life know that there is nothing else on earth so pitiful as the middle-aged woman who is thrown suddenly on her own resources—and who has no resources.

She has never been taught to do anything well enough to make a profession of it. She is capable of doing no work that will sell in the market place.

She may have health and strength, and intelligence, and yet she is forced to become a dependent and a charge on others simply because of her ignorance and her lack of training in some gainful occupation.

Lucky Girl

She has a right to blame her parents for her misfortune, because it was their duty to give her as part of her education a working knowledge of some way by which she could earn an honest support.

In this respect the poor girl who goes into a store, or an office, or teaches, in the years before she is married, is more fortunate than her richer sister, for if misfortune comes to her later on in life; if her husband dies and leaves her a poor widow with little children clinging to her for support, or if he sickens, or for some reason it is necessary for her to become the breadwinner, she can always fall back upon her old profession, whereas the girl who has been well-to-do or rich in her youth has no crutch to lean upon in her hour of adversity.

I am not one of those who believe that every girl should go out from home to earn her living, whether she needs to or not.

Far from it. There are plenty of poor girls who need the money to fill every place that is open to women, and the girl with a father who is able and anxious to support her ought to think many times before she takes the bread out of her poor sister's mouth by becoming her competitor in business.

But there are many things that the rich girl may learn to do that she could turn into a gainful occupation if necessary.

Let her perfect herself in the fine arts that cost so much money to study, or let her, like Helen Gould and Mrs. Sutro, and numbers of other rich women, study law that she may the better look after her own interests.

Teach Business

Every father who has a fortune to leave his daughters should see that they take a thorough commercial course in his offices, and that they familiarize themselves with [illegible] and investments so that they may not be the ignorant victims of their trustees and every sharper with a wild-cat speculation that comes along when the management of their property falls into their own hands.

I can think of nothing that would be of more practical advantage to the world at large than for every girl to spend the first year out of school in her father's office as his stenographer and confidential clerk.

She would learn business uses, the handling of money, and more things generally that would be of real benefit to her in after life than she could possibly acquire in any other way.

It would fit her to be a better wife and a more economical manager as long as she lives, for no woman who has earned money herself, and has seen the blood and sweat of business and of how hard a dollar comes, ever looks at it again in the same light as she did before her eyes were opened.

It represents to her tangible stress and strain and struggle, and she does not throw it away as lightly as she did when she thought that a check was evolved by some sort of necromancy.

More Sympathy

Also, she has more sympathy and patience with the weary business man, and a better understanding of how to treat one who has borne all of the aggravations that he can endure during the day and comes home to rest, and not to be dragged out to pink teas.

Nor is it necessary that the well-to-do girl should go out of her home to learn some profession by which she can support herself if necessary.

When the Almighty created man and woman, He created different spheres of usefulness for them, and each is most successful when each sticks to the work for which he or she was intended.

No woman can pick out a better occupation than that of housewifery or sewing, and she who perfects herself in either one of these lines, has got a profession in which she can not only make a living, but make a fortune whenever she chooses to devote herself intelligently to it.

Nor is there any danger of any of these lines of endeavor being overcrowded. People can do without music, and pictures, and books, they can economize on theatres and concerts, but every human being has to be fed and clothed. These are the great primal necessities of life, and they are also humanity's chief indulgences.

Where Money Goes

The most of the money of the world goes for eating and dressing, and whatever else we do without, we do not stint our stomachs or our backs.

There is nothing for which we part with our money so cheerfully as a good dinner and good clothes.

Parents have excused their dereliction in teaching their daughters some way to make a living by saying that they expected the girls to marry, as if marriage in real life was like it is in a fairy story, the end of all of a woman's troubles and anxieties.

Unfortunately, this is not the case. There are bad husbands and improvident husbands and sick husbands, and even good husbands often die leaving widows with little children to support, and the necessities of a married woman earning money are often far more urgent than those of a single woman.

It is such contingencies as these against which parents should provide in their daughters' education, and it should be considered just as much of a disgrace to a father or mother not to have their daughter taught some way to support herself as not to be taught how to read and write.

WINTER SPONGE CAKE

TAKE four eggs, two cups of sugar, two coffee cups of flour, two teaspoons cream tartar, two-thirds of a cup boiling water and lemon to flavor; add the water last. Pour into a pan and place into a well-heated oven. This, though apparently very thin, will come from the oven a most delightful cake. ANNA C. BERRY.

Box 452, Houlton, Me.

DELICATE PUDDING

SET one pint of milk and one tablespoon of butter in double boiler to heat. Sift together one-half cup flour and one-fourth cup sugar; wet these with a little cold milk and stir in the hot milk. Let boil till thick and set off. Beat the yolks of three or four eggs until light and stir into this mixture. Beat the whites stiff and fold in last very lightly. Pour all in a shallow pudding dish and set in another pan containing water. Bake from one-half to three-quarters of an hour.

SAUCE.

One cup boiling water; sift one-half cup sugar and one tablespoon flour together. Wet with one-half cup cold water and boil one minute. Add small piece butter and flavor with vanilla.

MRS. R. H. ADAMS.

No. 132 High street, Newton Upper Falls.

LEMON MARMALADE

TAKE lemons that have nice clear skins, peel them and put the skin on to boil until tender; then change the water three times. When it is tender cut to fine shreds, peel all the white from the lemons and pick the lemons into small pieces, removing all the pulp. Allow one pound of sugar to every pound of fruit and allow one pint of water to every twelve lemons. Make a syrup of the water and sugar, and then add the rind and the lemon and let boil one-half hour. Skim carefully.

MRS. E. DAVEY.

SPANISH TOMATOES.

ONE gallon green tomatoes sliced. Put in a small handful of salt to each layer and let stand over night. Drain off the liquor and add two large peppers and four onions sliced. Then take one quart vinegar and one pound brown sugar, one teaspoon cassia, cloves and scant teaspoon pepper. Add to pickle and boil ten minutes. When done and while hot add two tablespoons whole mustard.

JERSEY PICKLE.

Five and one-half pounds ripe tomatoes, three pounds white sugar, one pint vinegar, small handful each of whole cloves and whole cinnamon. Cook all together.

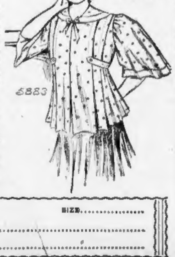
PRETTY NEGLIGEE IN EMPIRE EFFECTS



No. 5,883—The attractive dressing sacque here pictured in a development of soft white dotted challis shows grace in every detail. Bands of the material hold the fulness in place under the arms in Empire effect, but the use of the bands is a matter of taste, the garment being equally pretty without. Wide pleats extend over the shoulders, giving extra fulness over the bust, while the back is semi-fitted, the pleats being stitched to the waistline. Satisfactory developments may be had in cashmere, challis, albatross, pongee, French flannel, dimity, lawn and the figured crepes. For 36 inches bust measure 3¼ yards of 36-inch material will be required.

No. 5,883—Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

"DO you give up your whole time to this sort of work?" Sybil asked presently.

"I do now," Mary answered. "I had other employment in the morning, but I gave that up last week. I am a salaried official of the society from last Monday."

Sybil stole a swift side-glance at her.

"Do you know, I think that it must be a very satisfactory sort of life," she said.

Mary's lips flickered into the faintest of smiles.

"Really?"

"Oh, I mean it," Sybil continued. "Of course, I like going about and enjoying myself, but it is hideously tiring. And then, after a year or two of it you begin to realize a sort of sameness. Things lose their flavor. Then you have odd times of serious thought, and you know that you have just been going round and round in a circle—that you have done nothing at all except made some show at enjoying yourself. Now, that isn't very satisfactory, is it?"

"No," Mary answered, "I don't suppose it is."

"Now you," Sybil continued, "you may be dull sometimes, but I don't suppose you are, and whenever you leave off and think—well, you must always feel that your time, instead of having been wasted, has been well and wholesomely spent. I wish I could have that feeling sometimes."

Despite herself, Mary felt that she would have to like this girl. She was so pretty, so natural and so deeply in earnest.

"There is no reason why you shouldn't, is there?" she said, more kindly than she had as yet spoken. "I can assure you that I very often have the blues, and I don't consider mine by any means the happiest sort of life. But, of course, one feels differently a little if one has tried to do something—and you can if you like, you know."

A Busy Morning

Sybil's face was perfectly brilliant with smiles.

"You think that I can?" she exclaimed. "How nice of you. I don't mind how hard it is at first. I may be a little awkward, but I don't think I'm stupid."

"You think this sort of work is the sort you would like best?"

"Why, yes. It seems so practical, you know," Sybil declared. "You must be doing good, even if some of the people don't deserve it. I don't know about the washing, but I don't mind it a bit. Do you think it will be a busy morning?"

"I am sure it will," Mary answered. "A number of people are getting to work again now, since the Tariff Revision bill passed, and they keep coming to us for clothes and boots and things. I shall give you the skirts and blouses to look after as soon as the washing is over."

"Delightful," Sybil exclaimed. "I am sure I can manage that."

"And on no account must you give any money to anyone," Mary said. "That is most important."

"I will remember," Sybil promised.

Two hours later she broke in upon her mother and half a dozen callers, her hat obviously put on without a looking glass, her face flushed, and her hair disordered, and smelling strongly of disinfectants.

"Some tea, mother, please," she exclaimed, nodding to her visitors. "I have had one bun for luncheon, and I am starving. Can you imagine what I have been doing?"

No one could. Everyone tried.

"Skating!"

"Ping-pong!"

"Getting theatre tickets at the theatre!"

She waved them aside with scorn.

Clever and Original.

"I have washed fourteen children," she declared, impressively, "fitted at least a dozen women with blouses and skirts and three with boots. Besides a lot of odd things."

Lord Arranmore set down his cup with a little shrug of the shoulders.

"You have joined Brooks's society?" he remarked.

"Yes! I have been down at the Stepney Branch all the morning. And, do you know, we're disinfected before we leave."

"A most necessary precaution, I should think," Lady Caroom exclaimed, reaching for her vinaigrette, "but do go and change your things as quickly as you can."

"I must eat, mother, or starve," Sybil declared. "I have never been so hungry."

A somewhat ponderous lady, who was the wife of a Bishop, felt bound to express her disapprobation.

"Do you really think, dear," she said, "that you are wise in encouraging a charity which is not in any way under the control of the church?"

"Oh, isn't it?" Sybil remarked. "I'm sure I didn't know. But then the church hasn't anything quite like this, has it? Mr. Brooks is so clever and original in all his ideas."

The disapprobation of the Bishop's wife became even more marked.

"The very fact," she said, "that the church has not thought it wise to institute a charitable scheme upon such—er—sweeping lines, is a proof, to my mind, that the whole thing is a mistake. As a matter of fact, I happen to know that the Bishop strongly disapproves of Mr. Brooks's methods."

"Rather a Pity"

"That's rather a pity, isn't it?" Sybil asked, sweetly. "The society has done so much good, and in so short a time. Everyone admits that."

"I think that the opinion is far from universal," the elder lady remarked, firmly. "There appears to be no discrimination shown whatever in the distribution of relief. The deserving and the undeserving are all classed together. I could not possibly approve of any charity conducted upon such lines, nor, I think, could any good churchwoman."

"Mr. Brooks thinks," Sybil remarked, with her mouth full of cake, "that it is the undeserving who are in the greatest need of help."

"One could believe anything," the Bishop's wife said, stiffly, "of a man who adopted such principles as that. And although I do not as a rule approve of Mr. Lavilette or his paper, I am seriously inclined to agree with him in some of his strictures upon Mr. Brooks."

Lord Arranmore shook his head slowly.

"Mr. Lavilette," he said, "has also had to pay damages in one or two rather expensive libel cases. And, between you and me, Mrs. Endicott, if our young friend Brooks chose to move in the matter, I am afraid Mr. Lavilette might have to sign the largest check he has ever signed in his life for law costs."

The Bishop's wife rose with an icy smile.

"I seem to have found my way into Mr. Brooks's headquarters," she remarked. "Lady Caroom, I shall hope to see you at the palace shortly."

"Poor me," Sybil exclaimed, as their visitor departed. "She only asked you, mummy, so as to exclude me. And poor Mr. Brooks! I wish he'd been here. What fun we should have had!"

To Be Continued To-morrow.

Imagination Gives the Wings That Let Us Soar to the Heights

By Winifred Black

A LITTLE girl I know came running in from the garden the other day. She had two great flapping catalpa leaves fastened to her shoulders.

"See, mamma," she said; "look at my lovely wings; now if I only could find some fairy powder to shake on them I could fly, couldn't I?"

"Yes, honey," said I to the little girl I know. "If you could find some fairy powder and sprinkle it on those wings you could really fly."

The little girl I know looked at me with large, trustful eyes. Her chin began to quiver.

"It's too bad," she said tremulously, "dat I can't find de fairy powder when I have such a lovely pair of wings, isn't it?"

And I comforted the little girl I know and kissed her, and then we went out to hunt for a fairy ring in the grass and to see if we couldn't find a toadstool where the old grasshopper who plays for the fairies to dance sits when he is tuning his fiddle.

* * *

That evening I dined with the rich and great. After dinner we sat on the veranda and watched the stars come laughing down the sky, and the crickets chirped and the scent of the growing grass was sweet in the nostrils.

What Is Needed

"LET'S go to the theatre," said one of the rich and great, and in less than five minutes we were whizzing out of the green and the perfume and the starlight, down to the noisy, ill-smelling town.

It was hot in the theatre and we sat in the middle of a row of seats. The play was inane, the actors were bad, the air was stifling, and we sat and were bored until it was all I could do to keep from rushing out into the clean night air again.

And all the time at the very gate of the stifling horror we sat in was a nice, roomy automobile, and in five minutes we could have been on our way to the starlight and the sweet winds and the sparkling heavens again.

I looked at the rich and the great, and wondered. Then all at once it came to me—"They have the wings," I said to myself, "the great, strong, untiring wings that money buys—but they have not found the fairy powder—that's the reason they cannot fly."

One Thing Lacking

A FRIEND told me a little story this morning. "Yesterday," said my friend, "I supped with a millionaire; he told me about a magnificent house he is building in a faraway city.

"'I'm spending a million and a quarter on it,' he said. 'It is a palace, but all my friends are here, and this is the only place in which I really want to live. However,' and the millionaire sighed a deep and mournful sigh, 'beggars can't be choosers.'"

I looked at my friend and smiled.

"He has the wings, all right, you see," I said. "All he lacks is the fairy powder."

The fairy powder! How poor he is that lacks it!

Imagination, the love of simple things, the love of beauty, the love of outdoors, of little children and of the singing of the waters in a free stream—he who has not found any of these fairy powders can never, never fly.

DAILY PUZZLE PICTURE

ANSWER: ..............................

ONE of these puzzle pictures will be published daily in the BOSTON AMERICAN. Twenty dollars in prizes will be given weekly for the best answer.

The $20 in prizes will be divided as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| First prize | $10 |
| Second prize | 5 |
| Five prizes of $1 each | 5 |
| Total | $20 |

Cut out the picture each day, write your answer on it, and when you have the complete set of seven mail them to the Puzzle Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street, with your best suggestion as to what you would like to see in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Where two lists are equally good, the prize will be awarded to the one who makes the best suggestion.

The list of prize winners in last week's contest, together with the final picture in this week's series, will be printed in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL

BY THE PROFESSOR

LONG eyelashes and well trained brows are marks of beauty too often neglected by the average girl. Both lashes and brows are for the protection of the eyes, and if there is anything abnormal about them the appearance of the eye is altered.

Don't allow the brows to grow shaggy, but brush them as regularly as you do your hair. If they are inclined to stand out paste them down with adhesive plaster at night after having arranged them in a narrow, good line. If they are scanty anoint them with red vaseline, taking care not to get any into the eyes. The same treatment will make the lashes grow long and heavy.

Clip the lashes once or twice a year a very little, being careful to get them even, and if any one hair is unruly pull it out.

REMOVING WARTS

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Will you please tell me of something that will remove warts from my hands? I have some large ones that trouble me a great deal. E. S.

IT is hard to use anything on warts without injuring the skin around them and leaving scars. However, you can use the following, being careful not to get it on any place except the warts: Mix equal portions of precipitated sulphur, glacial acetic acid and glycerin in very small quantities only, as it has to be made fresh each night, when it is applied a little to each wart. While you can remove them yourself in this way, they are almost sure to leave scars and it would be much wiser for you to have them removed by the electric needle. Have it done by some one whom you know to be reliable and then they will disappear without leaving any sign.

RESTORE RED HAIR

DEAR PROFESSOR:
My hair was red in my younger days, and I am not forty yet, but most of it is now gray. I do not like the combination of colors and would like to learn of something that will turn the rest of it gray. How long will it take and will it be injurious to the growth of the hair? A: HASBIN.

THERE is nothing that will bleach your hair white without destroying the fiber, but you can treat it with henna and get back the original color without harming the hair in the least. Make a strong tea of the henna leaves or a paste with the powdered leaves. Put on with a small brush and be careful that every hair is evenly touched with it. If you use the henna paste, spread it over the hair evenly and let it stay on for an hour, then give the hair a good shampoo and dry. This will, of course, have to be renewed as the hair grows out.

BLACK RINGS UNDER EYES

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Is there anything that will remove the black circles from under the eyes? I seem to be in good health, but the dark patches under my eyes trouble me a great deal, as they are unsightly. CLARA.

DARK rings usually indicate some internal trouble, dissipation, over study or loss of sleep. However, it seems in some cases to be a natural condition and may be relieved in a measure by the following lotion applied frequently: Oil of sweet almonds, 4 ounces; fresh cucumber juice, 10 ounces; essence of cucumbers, 3 ounces; white castile soap, powdered, ½ ounce; tincture of benzoin, two-thirds dram. Boil cucumbers in little water to get the juice; cut thin, skin and all, cook until tender, strain through the sieve and then through a cloth. Make essence by using equal parts of the juice and alcohol. Dissolve the soap in the essence and then add cucumber juice, shaking until an emulsion is formed, then add the benzoin.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

MIDSUMMER clearance sales are at their height just now and the thrifty shopper is getting the best values of the year. Here are some of to-morrow's best choices:

To-morrow MacDONNELL'S will sell at their Tremont Temple store a lot of fancy mesh made veils, with real chenille dots, 1½ yards long, regular 50-cent value at 10 cents each, while they last. No mail orders will be received.

One more piece can be added to your mission furnished room very cheaply. Jordan Marsh Co. will sell small, light hardwood mission finished book racks, the regular price of which is 35 and 50 cents, marked to 15 cents each.

At BACON'S to-morrow you can get plain white semi-porcelain oatmeal dishes, the 60-cent a dozen kind, for only 3 cents apiece.

It will pay any shopper to look at those sheer muslin curtains which Siegel's are offering to-morrow for 70 cents. They come in large or small figures and spot effects and are $1.25 and $1.50 values.

Jelly tumblers, made from clear glass, all complete with bright tin covers, can be bought for 1 cent each at Timothy Smith Co.'s.

Have you seen those large paper-mache photo frames at Vorenberg's? They come in different colors and are reduced from 25 cents to 10 cents each for to-morrow.

At R. H. WHITE'S you can get 6½-inch heavy black taffeta and black satin ribbon, the correct width for the popular Hurdy Gurdy bows—a 40-cent value for 29 cents. Bows will be tied free.

The wise shopper will take advantage of the bargain in towels at Shepard Norwell Company's to-morrow. You can get huck towels, very heavy, with red border, reduced for one day from 17 cents to 12½ cents.

At A. SHUMAN'S to-morrow you can purchase fine white muslin underskirts, with full deep flounce of Hamburg. These skirts are $2.50 and $3 values and will be sold to-morrow for $1.95.

Don't Miss This Chance

Until Thursday you may see and talk with a lady who has had the lines and wrinkles removed from one-half the face, leaving the other side to show all the wrinkles, flabby skin that formerly covered the entire face. Try to realize this startling fact. One side of her face shows all the traces of age; the other side shows all the smooth brightness of girlhood.

On Thursday our expert from New York will complete the treatment of this case and your opportunity to see this remarkable demonstration will have gone forever.

No matter how deep or how many your wrinkles may be—no matter how coarse and sallow your skin may be—the famous Woodbury Method changes its texture and leaves it clear, smooth and velvety.
It is done without electricity, without tedious massage and without cutting or the use of any surgical instrument. It is done by nourishing, strengthening and building up the weakened and relaxed underlying muscles and by reviving the action of the true skin, thus restoring a bright complexion and a youthful facial contour.
Whether you call or write your inquiry will be treated with strict professional confidence, and every question will be answered without placing you under the slightest obligation.

Office hours are from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. (Sunday excepted).

Tragedies of the Telegraphers' Strike in the Day's News

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Mrs. John D. Walker, her three young children and her aged mother are to-day facing starvation because Mrs. Walker, who is a telegraph operator, dares to stand by the union and has gone out on strike. Her husband, angered, has refused to give her any money.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—As a result of working twenty hours a day since the telegraphers' strike began, Harry Behmkin, a non-union telegraph operator, went insane at his key and drove all of the other operators out of the Western Union office where he worked. He is in a straitjacket in Bellevue Hospital to-day.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—President Small, of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, will come to New York next Saturday and take personal charge of the strike stronghold. The announcement, which was made by Deputy President Percy Thomas, was greeted with cheers by the strikers, who showed as much determination yesterday as they did on the day they deserted the Western Union and Postal offices in a body.

Although both the company officials and the local strike leaders have refrained from arbitration suggestions, it is not unlikely that a move to settle the strike will follow President Small's arrival.

National arbitration experts, including President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor and Commissioner of Labor Neill, will likely be in New York by the time President Small comes from the West.

This is the natural place for a telegraphic peace conference, as the only officials of the telegraph companies involved have their offices here. President Small would have come to New York immediately after issuing the strike order had there been any immediate chance of arbitration. In view of the strong feeling that existed on both sides, it was deemed wiser for him to thoroughly build up the strike in the West before coming here.

ARMED MOB WRECK POSTAL OFFICE AND POLICE ARE CALLED

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 21.—An armed mob attacked the important relay office of the Postal Telegraph Company at Ashfork, Arizona, early to-day and broke every window in the building with a rain of bullets.

The lives of four employes were endangered, but so far as known no one was injured. The last dispatch from Ashfork stated that arrangements were being arranged to run a special engine to Prescott, the county seat, to bring the sheriff and a sufficient number of deputies to quell the riot. The shooting began at 1 o'clock in the morning. The Postal employes made no resistance.

Vice-President Nally of the Postal Company, wired from New York that he had taken the matter up with the Federal authorities at Washington, and Superintendent Lewis of this district wired the following to Governor Kibbey:

"An armed mob attacked our office at Ashfork, shooting into the office with revolvers and endangering the lives of our employes. They threatened to renew the attack to-night. I call upon you to protect the lives of our employes and the property of the company at Ashfork. Please act promptly."

Governor Kibbey replied that he would act immediately.

Ashfork is a small town in Arizona on the Santa Fe and is the chief "repeating" station of the Postal Company between Los Angeles and the East.

Five men are regularly employed, but three quit when the strike was ordered. One man has since been sent there from San Francisco to join the two operators who remained with the company.

TELEGRAPHERS MAY SPRING BIG SURPRISE

The Boston Commercial Telegraphers' Union may spring a surprise to-day on the local telegraph companies by bringing action to stop the latter from using the mails, which, the strikers say, is illegal, and of which they say they have proof.

"The commercial telegraph companies have placed their charters in jeopardy," is the opinion of the legal authorities whom the union officials have consulted.

A list of New York brokers who have signed the union agreement has been prepared. Among those who signed who have offices in this city are Hayden, Stone & Company, Bartlett, Frazier & Carrington, Watson & Company, Barrell, Finley & Company, and T. A. McIntyre.

By noon to-day all Boston brokers will have been waited on by the union representatives in quest of signatures to the union agreement.

BISHOP VISITS TAUNTON HOME

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 21.—Escorted by personal friends who had gathered to say farewell, the Right Rev. Thomas J. Conaty, Bishop of the diocese of Monterey and Los Angeles, took the evening train for the North last night. At Helena, Mon., he will conduct a retreat at St. Mary's Church, after which he will proceed to the old Conaty homestead at Taunton, Mass., where the Conaty family will hold a reunion.

The principal reason for the journey is the silver jubilee of his brother, the Rev. Bernard Conaty, who was ordained in 1882, and who is pastor of Sacred Heart Church at Worcester.

NARRAGANSETT CRUSADE STIRS SOCIETY FOLK

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 21.—The lid is down at Narragansett Pier. Chief of Police Caswell started his crusade against lawbreakers, and as a result every place, where it is alleged gambling has been carried on, or where liquor has been sold without the formality of a license, is closed to-day, while society is deeply stirred over the outlook.

All this is the result of the visit which Chief Caswell and Officer Quinn, one of the veteran patrolmen of the town, made yesterday, in accordance with instructions from the Town Council.

A strict enforcement of the law would mean a closing of the Casino, the Country Club, the prevention of liquor being served on the table at any of the hotels, and in short would create such a situation as the Pier has never faced in all its history.

Many of the society people object strenuously to any such thing as this wholesale enforcement, since it is said that Sunday is the biggest day of the week at the Casino, and both there and at the Point Judith Country Club more people congregate on the Sabbath than on any other day.

Chief Caswell, in an interview last night, said he believed that he had faithfully carried out the orders of the council, and added: "I intend to see that the orders which I have given are respected and obeyed, since it has been decreed that gambling and the illegal sale of liquor shall not be carried on here at the Pier."

HUNT FOR MAN WHO ASSAULTED OFFICER

Patrolman Lindell Cleveland of Station 13 is at the Faulkner Hospital, Jamaica Plain, suffering with a severe concussion of the brain and bruises on the face, nose and jaw. He received his injuries attempting to arrest a Norwood man at Forest Hills about 10 o'clock last night.

A search is being made by the officers for the man who hit Patrolman Cleveland.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Richard Mansfield will to-day leave for his Summer home in New London, Conn. It was planned to make his trip next Sunday, but the actor's nurses decided to hasten his departure from the Adirondacks, where he had been to recover his lost health.

WORRY KILLS N. Y. BROKER

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Arthur A. Housman, head of the Stock Exchange house of A. A. Housman & Co., of Broad street, died on his country estate at Babylon, L. I., early to-day.

The impression prevails in Wall street that Mr. Housman's illness was brought on by worry over the condition of the stock market. Mr. Housman was taken ill suddenly Sunday morning.

Mr. Housman was known as one of the J. P. Morgan brokers.

WOMEN KILLED; POSSE HUNTING NEGRO SLAYER

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—A posse, bent on carrying out the mosaic law, "a life for a life," is searching for a negro who is suspected of having been one of two who attacked and murdered two women near Collingwood, a short distance from Camden, N. J.

The victims were attacked in the farmhouse of Edward Horner, after he had been lured from the dwelling by a blaze which had been kindled in his barn.

Charles Gibson, a negro, formerly employed on Horner's farm, is safe in the Camden jail, and the armed posse is seeking another negro, who had been engaged by Horner only twenty-four hours before the tragedy.

The murdered women are Mrs. Horner and a servant, Victoria Napoli. They were slain with an axe.

Horner's attention was called to smoke issuing from his barn, and he at once tried to extinguish the flames. Finding that the structure was beyond saving, and that the flames menaced the house, he returned, to make the frightful discovery of the tragedy.

Upon entering the building he saw the servant's body on the floor of the kitchen. Her head was practically severed and great rents in her garments told of the struggle she had made for life.

In an adjoining room Horner found the body of his wife. Her head had been severed from her body, her face was beaten almost beyond recognition and her skull was fractured. Nearby her body was an axe covered with blood.

Horner ran to his nearest neighbor and reported the crime. The news of the murder spread to other farms, and soon a score of farmers were at the Horner home. Horner says the murderer entered the living room of the house and got $4 and two gold watches, which, he declares, only a person familiar with the building could have obtained.

CROSS SEA TO KILL ARMENIAN

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—From information contained in a letter discovered yesterday, the police believe two Armenians, members of the Hunchakist revolutionary party, are now on their way to the United States to execute a murder plot against some wealthy Armenian-American who has refused to be blackmailed.

The letter, which was mailed at Marseilles, France, on August 7, was sent to Sumbat K. Mooradian, an employe of Pushman Brothers, No. 137 Wabash avenue, from which detectives obtained the letter while questioning him concerning his connection with the Hunchakist organization in Chicago.

Umpire—O'Day.

Who said the Doves couldn't play ball? Two out of three from the Pirates is stepping some and to-day they wind up the series with the Smoky City lads and there won't be any long odds on the visitors either.

It's the farewell exhibition by the Pirates in the Hub as they make their exit till next season after to-day and will be seen no more.

With the Pirates playing several grades under their usual standard there is no reason why the Doves shouldn't get the game to-day and sink the Pirate craft. There is certainly a good twirler on hand to do the job, as Pfeffer is about due to show some good style, and now that the slump is history and the winning streak is on there's no telling what the limit will be.

And Vic Willis, who once stood on the mound in defence of the Hub team, is likely to give us a taste of his ability since he joined the Pirates and had his praises sung in the foreign burg. Vic is a pretty hard obstacle to down when he is going fine, but he will have to be extra good to balk the Doves in the present upheaval.

All past defeats were forgotten yesterday when the Doves scuttled the Pirates in an eleven-inning catch-as-catch-can meeting on the green turf. Think of it. The Doves battling with the Pirates, who are fighting the Giants for second place and had it all arranged that they would get a clean sweep in the city being put under the table by the lowly Doves to the blast of 9 to 8.

NOTES OF THE VICTORY.

There was variety enough in that game to please all.

The Doves made fourteen hits while the Pirates made half as many, yet the Doves had hard work to win.

The trouble was with Linderman, who passed nine batters and hit one. Four of these scored.

Dave Brain was again the batting hero. He was on time with his homer and hit a steamy single. Keep it up, Beauty.

Ritchey, Tenney and Beaumont got triples which developed into runs.

Boultes pitched the last three innings and not a Pirate reached first. Better give the boy some more chances.

In those three sessions he fanned three, too, besides making one assist which made him stretch himself.

When he fanned the great Wagner in the tenth the crowd cut loose and gave him a deserving ovation.

Wagner did all the batting for his side, getting three clean hits.

Phillippi left the game at the end of the third inning. The Doves got five hits off him, including Brain's homer.

It was a long game, but few moments in which there was not some excitement.

PAPKE COMES EAST TO FIGHT

It was definitely settled yesterday that Bill Papke, the Illinois fistic wonder, who will box Tommy Sullivan at Lawrence, Labor Day, will train in the East for the contest, and he will arrive in this city next Saturday from Saginaw, Mich., where he boxes to-night.

Papke is the style of pugilist who makes a direct impression upon the spectators. He don't waste any time in fancy sparring or in feinting an opponent. He wades in from the tap of the gong and never stops going throughout the whole three minutes of the round.

He never breaks ground. Always eager to mix things, he is busy all the time that he is in the ring, and he will be in excellent shape for his initial appearance in the East.

Sullivan is doing good, faithful work at Northboro, however, and he will undoubtedly prove a revelation to the Westerner. Tommy has been boxing in royal shape during the past year and he intends to prove to his friends that he is able to cope with anyone in his class.

Sonoma Girl, Newly Rigged for Today's Big Race

This is how Sonoma Girl looks for her race in the classic Massachusett stake, valued at $9,000, at Readville to-day. This contest is the feature of the Grand Circuit meet, and it is expected that with two such stars of the turf as Sonoma Girl and Highball competing the horse followers will see one of the greatest battles between equines ever seen in these parts.

Myron McHenry, the wizard of the sulky, discovered in the Blue Hill stake Monday that the famous $20,000 trotting mare, Sonoma Girl, was not harnessed, booted or shod just to his liking. After careful consideration he has made the following changes in her rigging that will be carried into effect to-day when she starts in the classic Massachusetts stake: A jawstrap to keep her mouth closed, as lately she gained the habit of having it open and frequently getting her tongue over the bit. In this way it was nearly impossible to bring her to a trot when she made a break; the check taken up a couple of holes to give the jawstrap its effect, and steady her a little more when at speed; knee-boots with elastic extensions over the shoulders, in place of the knee-joints holding the boots alone; two-ounce heavier shoes in front, with rawhide between the shoe and hoof, the centre part cut out over the frogs and a brand new set of shoes behind. McHenry has tried her with the jawstrap, and while the former owners said that she would fight one, not liking it at all, yet not in the least degree did she behave any different from other horses so rigged, but apparently appreciated the alterations.

PILGRIMS GET TWO NEW MEN FROM COAST

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 21.—"Midget" Carlisle, the great little left-fielder of the Los Angeles baseball team, whose excellent work with the stick and in the field has gained for him national prominence, has been sold to the Boston American League team, the purchase price being $2,500.

Rightfielder Cravath of the Angels also will go to the Boston Americans, Treasurer McBreen having bought him outright for $2,000.

In the official batting averages of the league up to August 1 Cravath leads with a percentage of .314, he having taken part in 99 games and making 104 hits out of 331 times at bat.

Both Cravath and Carlisle will finish the season with the Angels, one of the conditions of their contracts being that Manager Barry will deliver the men to the Boston manager at the end of this season.

GESSLER SIGNED BY PILGRIMS

President Taylor signed another player today for the foundation of his champion aggregation for next year.

Through the agency of Fred Lake and George Huff, the Hub scouts, Harry Gessler of the Columbus team, the outfielder, has been secured. Gessler is not unknown to Hub fans as he played with Brooklyn a couple of years ago and was tried out also by Chicago Cubs. The two experts who have looked him over say that he has increased a hundred percent in his all round playing.

Gessler certainly has the build to make a ball player of reputation, as he is solidly put together and is sound from top to toe.

KARL BEHR LOST IN BIG TOURNEY

NEWPORT, Aug. 21.—Easily the feature of the first day's play of the national lawn tennis tourney was the defeat of Karl Behr by C. H. Palmer of Ridgway, N. J., almost an unknown entrant. It was expected that Behr would at least survive until the semi-finals.

BARNES BEAT SUNDSTROM

It took just thirty-six minutes for Jim Barnes of Worcester to demonstrate that he is still middle-weight champion wrestler of America, in a catch-as-catch-can wrestling contest held at the Columbia Theatre last evening. The first fall was made by Barnes in seventeen minutes, the second by Sundstrom in twelve minutes and the third by Barnes in seven minutes.

WINNERS OF 24-HOUR AUTO RACE WANT THEIR MONEY

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Where, oh, where are the cups and prizes, and who has got the $1,000 in gold coin which was to be distributed to the winners of the recent twenty-four-hour automobile race at Brighton Beach track? Echo answers where. Yesterday Montagu Roberts, who won the twenty-four-hour race in his Thomas flyer a week ago Saturday, was still chasing up and down Broadway at a sixty-mile-an-hour gait looking for President Joseph M. Gaites and Manager W. H. Pickens of the United States Motor Racing Association, who conducted the affair, but even when he found them he got little satisfaction, so he said, as President Gaites informed him that he had no money to pay him with.

Not only has Roberts not been paid, but it seems that none of the other winners of the short distance races have received their cups and prizes. The managers of the Stearns, Packard and Lozier companies, which won prizes at the recent meet, all stated that they had not received their cups yet, but that it would probably be all right, as the race meet was conducted under the auspices of the Long Island Automobile Club, which was a responsible organization.

One man was insane enough to remark that if he did not get his cup he would sue not only the Long Island Automobile Club, but the A. A. A. as well, for granting a sanction for the race.

This is all very well, and if the gentleman would only carry out his threat it might bring about a reform in the A. A. A.

Long before the Brighton Beach race meet was sanctioned by the A. A. A. some of the leading Chicago papers printed a long attack on the promoters of the twenty-four-hour race, which was held in that city early in July, and openly charged that the scores were fraudulently kept, and that the Matheson car, which really won the race, was deprived of its victory.

This race was conducted by the same people who organized the Brighton Beach affair, and the attention of the A. A. A. was called to the matter, but it paid no attention to the warning, and the result is what might have been expected.

On the official program of the Brighton Beach races was presented the following notice:

It is said that the promoters of the race cleared $5,000 or $6,000 and that of this something like $350 was given to the Long Island Automobile Club for the use of its name, but just what the A. A. A.'s share of the swag was could not be ascertained. In view of the above it would certainly seem to the unprejudiced onlooker as if it were up to either the A. A. A. or the Long Island Automobile Club to compel the United States Motor Racing Association to pay up or to make good to the winners.

Notes of the Diamond

Chicago's cripples, by the way, are reporting favorably, and if Fielder Jones can put the full playing strength of his club into the field within a week or ten days, the White Sox are far from being out of the hunt.

A Cleveland report has it that Stovall will probably soon be back in the harness. It is quite likely that a man could pick up a nice lot of chairs cheap at the Cleveland clubhouse just now if there is anything in the story.

When the season started the West was infinitely stronger than the East. Now it is about a toss up with the East probably a little stronger. The irreparable wrecking of the Naps and the Sox is the answer.

As an explanation of his sending Earl Moore to the Jersey City club, Griff says that the rest of the season with that team will probably give Moore back his lost confidence. This isn't very complimentary to the Yankees, but he certainly had a small chance to regain any confidence with our athletes on his Western trip.

The National Commission ought to limit the open season on pennant claiming to the drafting period and any time thereafter. It is bad enough to get pennant bull from sixteen clubs in the Winter, and now John I. Taylor is claiming the flag for next season.

The injury list of the younger league is growing daily and will probably smash all records before October 1. There are now just sixteen men in the league who have taken part in every game of the race.

As long as Davy Jones keeps up his great work in the outfield of the Tigers, there is but little chance for the great McIntyre. We regret this, as we are looking forward to his return battle with Ty Cobb.

Like Manager Caesar, who ran a pennant-winning club some years ago, Jimmy McAleer, of the Browns, wants men about him that are fat. His three backstops, Spencer, Stephens and O'Connor, all run heavily to overweight.

If Danny Hoffman can possibly secure permission from Griffith he will jump over to Cincinnati in September for the Baseball Field Day and try to show some of these athletes how a really fast man goes around the pillows.

Poor Lajoie! While cripples, bad luck, quitters and weight-throwers are doing all they can to make his everyday life a busy joy, the Cleveland critics have sprung demands in chorus that he resign. Dodging insults on the field, roasts in the papers and chairs in the clubhouse he has about as vivid an existence as anybody we can think of off-hand.

BASE BALL

How, When and Why First Started in Boston

This, with many other interesting and historical athletic events in the 50's and 60's, is told by James D'Wolf Lovett, (familiarly known in the old days as "Jimmy Lovett") in the revised, popular edition of his recent book, "Old Boston Boys and the Games They Played." Profusely illustrated with photographs of old time athletics and cartoons by C. D. Gibson and E. W. Blashfield. Price $2.00. Apply to T. P. ROBINSON, 141 Milk St., Room 1104, Boston. Forwarded on receipt of price. The Boston Transcript says: "No old Bostonian will find his happiness complete until he has read Mr. Lovett's account of bygone sports."

BIG INDIAN WANTS TO BOX JEFFRIES

Jack Meyers, the big Indian catcher of the Butte team, may tackle the prize-fighting game. When the Butte team was in Tacoma Biddy Bishop, now sporting editor of the Tacoma News, thought he saw a coming champion cropping out all over the big fellow. He talked with the Indian about it, but got nothing more than a grin and a grunt from Jack, who, the ball players say, is too good-natured to be a fighter.

"I guess Bishop just wanted something to write about," said Jack, with a bashful sort of a smile. "I don't know just what I would do if a real good chance should come for me to break in. I have boxed quite a lot, and I am not afraid to try it, but I wouldn't want to mix in that game unless I saw some real advantage to be gained by it.

"But you can put this down in black and white, and it ain't no joke, either. Jim Jeffries or nobody else could put me out in one round, like they did this guy Squires or Miner Munroe. I can hit just as hard as anybody else, and I think I can move a lot faster than Jeffries. He may know a little more about blocking or about certain kinds of punches, how to feint and lead, and all that, but any fellow ought to be able to learn that.

"If the thing were properly put up to me, with the right sort of handling, and well advertised, so I would be sure to get something out of it for my bit, why, I wouldn't mind taking a chance with Mr. Jeffries, Mr. Burns, or any of the other big fellows. Sure."

Meyers is about six feet tall and weighs 208 pounds, normal weight. He does not smoke or use tobacco or liquor, and is a marvel for speed and agility.

DETROIT, Aug. 21.—In all baseball there exists no more outspoken admiration society than the one composed of Jim McGuire, manager of the Boston club, and George Mullin, the big Detroit pitcher. McGuire, after yesterday's game, in which Mullin allowed but two Boston runners to reach second base, each with two out and neither to progress further, paid Mullin a warm compliment.

"I recall George Mullin when he came into the American League, a big strapping bulk of a boy, only 19 years old and fresh from the old Interstate League," said McGuire. "I joined the Detroit Club that same Spring, and one of my duties was to coach the colt pitchers. I have seen a lot of these young fellows come and go, but never have I seen one who took to his work more naturally than Mullin. His speed was just as good in 1902 as it is to-day, and he had curves that would take your breath away. His delivery was awkward and a bit bad on the arm, but he worked into his present graceful swing in his first season. There was never any doubt about his making good."

Later on the American correspondent ran against Mullin and again the talk drifted to his first year in the big league game. McGuire's name hadn't been mentioned till Mullin brought it in.

"My! but I must have been a green one in those days," said the big heaver. "I often wonder how it was I ever learned the game, though I rember I thought I knew it all. It was Jim McGuire who made a pitcher out of me and for whatever success I have had I am willing to give Jim all the credit. He not only posted me on the personal weakness and strength of the batters, but taught me a lot about the pitching itself. He got me to swinging my body with the throw and showed me how to save my arm, or I wouldn't be pitching to-day. I don't suppose Jim imagined then he might be teaching a man who would beat his club some day, but I'll say this: If I get to lose a game any day, I'd rather lose it to Jim McGuire's team than any other in the league."

Detroit has appealed to Ban Johnson to compel Boston to play a double-header here Thursday, in which case the Boston Club will be ineligible to the Sunday receipts, for which Treasurer McBreen is making so hard a battle. The local club figures that it will be able to get two-ground rule crowds out of the Boston double-header and the Sunday game with Washington.

Killian and Glaze will doubtless do the twirling for the rival teams in to-day's game.

BIG JEFF WON'T REFEREE GANS-BRITT BATTLE

Big Jim Jeffries has not been invited to witness the Gans-Britt bout from the ring. He is not the choice of either of the fighters for the important office of referee, and if Britt has his way Billy Welch will be the third man in the ring when Joseph and James Edward meet to exchange courtesies of the roped arena on September 9.

While Jeffries would show no favoritism, there have been some little differences between the retired champion and the Britts which make him second or third choice with James Edward and his wily brother-manager, Willus.

From Gans there would be no complaint against Jeffries sharing the roped arena with the contestants, but as Joe is not looking for a decision in his encounter he naturally believes that any man of experience can tell when the black paw gets home its knockout.

But inasmuch as "Billy" Welch has figured so often in important contests in San Francisco it is but natural that the Britts prefer him as judge and, of course, docile "Joe" has no objections to anything that is likely to come between him and a piece of bacon.

There are other reasons why Welch has the call over "Jeff," but these reasons are related to the political side of the sport only.

The Gans-Britt contest will be held in a baseball park, and as Acting Mayor Taylor raised no objections when the permit was issued there is little likelihood of any complications arising to prevent the bout. The ring is to be raised in the open air, and canvas awnings will run around two sides of it, under which circus seats will be erected. In case of a crowd, such as that which made trouble at the Britt-Nelson scrap, necessitating the refusal of admission to many ticket-holders through overcrowding of the building, the overflow can be let into the field without danger of overcrowding or of fire.

Britt is so confident that he can whip Gans that he is passing up good money. At least, that is what he says. It does look as though there may be the least bit of humor in such a statement emanating from the Britt brothers, sometimes known as the gold dust twins. The boys are not noted for getting anything other than the yellow metal, and when they pass up tempting morsels which may be devoured in the glare of the limelight in plain view of admiring throngs it is because they expect to get something choicer by waiting.

BY EDWARD E. COGSWELL.

With the third day of the Readville Grand Circuit meeting comes its most important racing event, the classic Massachusetts Stake, valued at $9,000, and to head the summary of the event is the ambition of turfmen the country over.

To-day is the twelfth renewal of the valuable stake, and when it is over will Sonoma Girl or Highball occupy the niche of fame with those who have carried off the honors in past seasons, or will some dark candidate flash from the unknown and rob the two named of their glory?

Never since the inaugural of the stake has the outcome been watched with such great interest as this year. Highball early in the season startled the public by his wonderful miles in preparation, and later by his sale to Frank Jones for $17,500. Then came his races against Sonoma Girl and his going wrong, requiring a letup since the Detroit meeting.

Highball in Shape.

Geers has succeeded in getting him back into his best condition for to-day's fray, and that means heats right in 2:05 to lower his colors.

Sonoma Girl was in the heighth of her fame up to the Buffalo meeting. There she developed the habit of breaking on the first turn. This cost her the race the week following at Poughkeepsie and the Blue Hill at Readville on Monday.

Since then McHenry has made alterations in her rigging and harness, which he believes will vastly improve her in the race this afternoon. That three-quarters Monday at close to a two-minute gait is evidence that all she needs is to go straight three heats to get the big slice of the money.

Claty Latus has speed enough to be in the counting if either of the stars should happen to be off a little, or to behave badly. She can turn the Readville track close to the record of the stake, 2:06¼, made by Sadie Mac two years ago. It seems pretty tough to own a trotter of so much merit the same season two horses of the calibre of Highball and Sonoma Girl spring up to catch all the good stake races down the circuit. However, the end is not yet, and the fortunes of racing are various.

Several of the other seven starters are known on form to be 2:09 or a shade better performers, and there is the chance that suddenly one of the number may break out with phenomenal speed when least expected.

Race Has Open Look.

The Readville for pacers will find eleven of the best in the 2:12 class turning for the word. Alice Pointer, Reproachless, William O., Hidalgo, Thornway and Shaughran have headed summaries in the circuit this year, and many of the remaining starters have been very close to the winners. The race has a very open look.

In the 2:12 trot eleven have elected to take the word. Jack Leyburn, on his Poughkeepsie race, should be slightly the better of the field. The dangerous ones are Wilkes Heart, The Dude, Mae Heart, Paul Kruger, Sarah Hamlin, MacDougall and The Pacolet. It will be a race from the drop of the hat.

PICKED UP HERE AND THERE AT READVILLE

New world's trotting record for three-year-old stallions set by General Watts at 2:06¾, and it is only August. Where will the colts trot by the time Lexington is reached in October?

Never did a winner receive such an ovation at Readville as Mike Bowerman, the Kentucky driver of Watts. The crowd gave him three times three with heartiness, while the band played "Kentucky."

T. C. Watts of Charleston, W. Va., is the owner of the colt, however, but he hardly counted with the popularity of Uncle Mike, whose face plainly showed he was as happy as a boy with new red-top boots.

Blue Hill was a surprise, and in the second heat, all knowing the work he had received, were expecting that he would throw out the flag of distress before reaching the wire. He fought on, though, to the bitter end.

It was the initial defeat for Bell Bird, but she went a wonderful race at that, and any other year would have won walking the futurity. She struck a pace in the opening heat and Lon McDonald had to break her before he was able to swing her to a trot. She trotted the balance of the mile very fast after getting to her stride.

The daughter of Jay Time is a rakish-looking filly. She wears a kicking strap, but appeared perfectly mannered in the race.

John H. Shoults of Brooklyn received an extra $350 for having named the dam of General Watts in the futurity; John P. Hall of the Home Farm, Milton, named the dam of Blue Hill and got a bonus of $125; Richard Cromwell, Jr., Catonsville, Md., was the gainer of $50 through naming the dam of Bell Bird, and James Butler of New York nailed the $25 offered the nominator of the dam of Flying Feet.

Unless there is an improvement of his opponents, Angus Pointer apparently holds the free-for-all pacers safe. In each of the heats he was far enough in the lead for Sunderlin to take him back to a jog inside the short distance.

He was a lucky buy for Senator George E. Whitney, as he is not only a very fast gelding, but there is no need of taking around a specially prepared track for him to race over. He races good over anything from a ploughed field to the best course laid out doors.

PELTON PIANO CO.

WE WISH to call your attention to the fact that owing to the extra dull trade for the Summer months we have on hand the largest stock of pianos we ever had, and there is not room in our wareroom for the new fall pianos that will soon arrive—never before have we sold pianos so reasonable, and you can make your own terms. We have some of the best makes in the country to select from, such as the Mehlin, Steinway, Kroeger, Miller, Chickering, Emerson, Haines, Kurtzman, Hallet & Davis, Mason & Hamlin and other good makes, some in good condition, as low as $50. We are only a short way from Park square, give us a chance to show you what we can do, and now is the time, for pianos will cost more a little later. If you can't come write us for description and prices of any of the above makes.

421 BOYLSTON STREET,
BERKELEY BUILDING.

CLEARANCE sale of standard uprights. Chickering $125 to $75, Steinway $175, Miller $150, Ivers & Pond $125, Harrington $175, Vose $175, Emerson $150, Cote $125, Schubert $125 to $250, Winters $225 to $275, Smith & Barnes $200 to $250, Squares $5 to $50. These pianos are all used, but in fine shape, and fully warranted. BLAKE'S, No. 564 Washington st. Elevator. Est. 1869. Here to-day and hereafter.

The Automobile's Future

Will It Collapse Like the Bicycle? Indeed It WILL NOT

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

The financial collapse of a big automobile concern recently has stirred up doleful predictions about the automobile's future.

"Everybody bought bicycles, enormous factories were started. Then it all died out suddenly and everything went to smash.

"The automobile will do the same. Everybody buys it, those that can't afford a horse have an automobile. The rage will die out and everything will go to smash."

Such are the doleful lamentations of the prophets of evil.

But there is no logic in such predictions. The automobile is as permanent an institution as the railway locomotive. It is more important, in fact, for it will help the public ultimately to break the monopoly which the trust-owned locomotive, with its steel rails and its exclusive right of way, has fastened upon the public.

The man who has bought an automobile and who hasn't the money to keep it, will, of course, have to give up the automobile, but the automobile will continue its development. It has already become a necessity; the days when it was thought a luxury are past. It is as necessary to a successful doctor, or any other business man who must cover much ground, as was the horse and buggy formerly.

Already wonders have been achieved in the way of cheapening and perfecting the machine. There are small automobiles very reasonable in price that can do the work of ten horses, and do not cost more to maintain than one horse, or two at the most.

Occasionally some automobile concern will fail—there must be failures in all businesses.

Sometimes a failure indicates not lack of intelligence or good management, but too great enthusiasm, too intense a desire for real success—the success of good production.

Those that are manufacturing automobiles, inventors, financiers, mechanics, who contribute in any way to the perfecting of the machine, are really benefactors of the public. The cheap car has come already and the cheaper car is coming.

The makers of high-power machines, marvellous triumphs of mechanical art, costing four thousand dollars or more, will always have their customers and their success.

But the great success of the future will be that of the man able to make a machine CHEAP, GOOD, SOLID, with a reasonable profit for himself.

One manufacturer, already marvellously successful, started out with the idea of limiting his net profit to sixty dollars upon each automobile. The amount seems small to those that have thought of the automobile in figures of five or ten thousand.

But if any man will give to the people of this country reliable machines, LASTING machines, easily taken care of, at a price within the reach of the average fairly prosperous man, the country will absorb them in thousands and tens of thousands.

If a man could put out the best machine with a profit for himself of sixty dollars on each, he could easily sell ten thousand yearly. AND SIX HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS A YEAR PROFIT WOULD NOT BE VERY BAD, EVEN FOR A GENUINE BUSINESS GIANT.

The development of the automobile has only begun. The day will come when every family in modest circumstances will possess a machine that will take the whole family out for an airing at a very low expenditure for fuel.

There will be no longer the expensive rubber tires, but a steel substitute just as good. And even when each family in moderate circumstances shall have its machine for pleasure, when every doctor and business man shall have his for business, the automobile industry will only have begun.

FOR EVERY HORSE PULLING A HEAVY LOAD IN CITIES IS DESTINED TO DISAPPEAR.

IN TWENTY YEARS, PERHAPS IN TEN, THERE WILL NOT BE A HORSE VISIBLE IN ANY BIG CITY. THE HORSES WILL BE WHERE THEY OUGHT TO BE, ON THE FARMS, WITH THEIR FEET ON THE SOFT EARTH. There will be no more slipping and sliding on stones and asphalt.

The development of the business automobile, the load-carrying machine, is still ahead of us. And that will mean an extraordinary outburst of prosperity for the men that make the right kind of a machine and a very great saving for those that use them in place of the expensive horses. And it will mean what is perhaps most important of all—a wonderful decrease in the suffering of wretched animals, and a curtailment of the brutality of men.

Little Editorials from the People

HELPING OUT A CORPORATION

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The Land and Harbor Commissioners of this State have performed a high-handed outrage against the city of Salem and the town of Peabody. They have obeyed the mandate of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Company and bowed to the will of a corporation.

The two municipalities named have just spent a half million dollars to build a sewage disposal system and abate a nuisance that has existed for forty years in the North River, which has been a common sewer of the two places. Now comes the Boston & Northern and asks that it be permitted to build a dam across the river near its Salem power station, merely that it may get water for condensing purposes. Mind you, it has taken water there for some years, but because it cannot get water good enough during the low tide it asks to build a permanent dam across a river fifty feet wide, prevent boats going up and down and collect whatever filth may come down from the street washings and otherwise.

This dam will hold the water over the mouth of a drain outlet of the city of Salem to a depth of two feet.

The Mayor of Salem, the city solicitor, the city engineer, the Board of Health and the sewerage commission, the town counsel of Peabody and the sewerage board as well as citizens generally have protested. But in vain; the dam is being built. The Mayor of Salem asked the company to hold on until another hearing can be had and the matter be looked into further. They laughed at him and increased the force of men at work.

The land and harbor commissioners having been appealed to for further hearing finally consented to hear the remonstrants next September, and in the meantime take no steps to stop the work until that time.

Who are these commissioners to whom the corporation will is law and the loud demands of two great communities of 50,000 people are as so much idle wind? Why did they railroad this matter through? It is a gross outrage. The only remedy is municipal and government ownership of such utilities. They got the board to even take away the power of the Salem Board of Health to make them abate a nuisance in the river if they create one, as they surely will.

JUSTICE.
Salem.

"HARD TO GET PEOPLE TO THINK"

Editor Boston American:

Is the BOSTON AMERICAN sensational? On behalf of at least nine staunch supporters of your plucky and daring paper I would like very much to have the editor answer this very interesting question. When a newspaper takes up the cause of the common people the cry of "yellow journal" is raised, and when a man agitates for the wage-earners the cry of "crank" is raised, and the average man and woman, especially the man, unwittingly heed the cry, and thus deliberately and ignorantly stand in their own light and in the light of their fellow beings.

The BOSTON AMERICAN uses larger and blacker type for display headings on its first page, and perhaps acts too hastily in its sympathy for the "under dog," but outside of this I think it is unfair and decidedly weak to hear people talk about your paper being too sensational. The illustrations in reference to trusts and the common people ought to wake up the most sleepy and unthinking mortals to their danger; but then, Mr. Editor, it is hard to get people to think.

"HOUNDING A VERY OLD WOMAN"

Editor Boston American:

Your editorial, "Hounding a Very Old Woman," must strike a responsive chord in the breasts of every true man who respects womanhood and honors gray hairs.

While I am not a devotee of the Christian Science cult, I agree with you that these attacks on Mrs. Eddy are cowardly. I go still further and say that the motive actuating the "next friends" is a sordid and base one, and if the truth were known the whole business is part and parcel of a plot to belittle Christian Science.

To invade the sanctity of one's home, and to pry into the personal life of a prominent but quiet and law-abiding citizen, under the name of the law, is the fifteenth and not the twentieth century method of civilization.

THE HALL-ROOM BOYS

THEY DO IT ON $9.50 PER

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

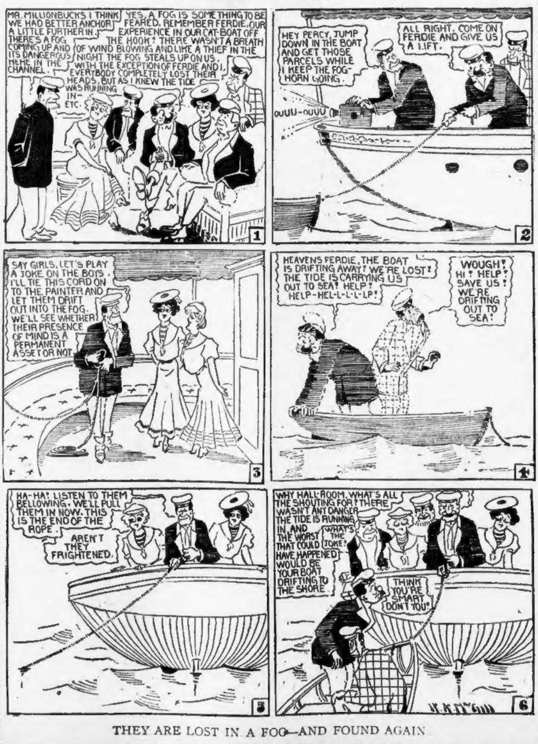

MR. MILLIONBUCKS I THINK WE HAD BETTER ANCHOR A LITTLE FURTHER IN. THERE'S A FOG COMING UP AND ITS DANGEROUS HERE IN THE CHANNEL.
YES, A FOG IS SOMETHING TO BE FEARED. REMEMBER FERDIE, OUR EXPERIENCE IN OUR CAT-BOAT OFF THE HOOK? THERE WASN'T A BREATH OF WIND BLOWING AND LIKE A THIEF IN THE NIGHT THE FOG STEALS UP ON US. WITH THE EXCEPTION OF FERDIE AND I, EVERYBODY COMPLETELY LOST THEIR HEADS, BUT AS I KNEW THE TIDE WAS RUNNING IN— ETC.
1
HEY PERCY, JUMP DOWN IN THE BOAT AND GET THOSE PARCELS WHILE I KEEP THE FOG-HORN GOING.
ALL RIGHT. COME ON FERDIE AND GIVE US A LIFT.
OUUU-OUUU
2
SAY GIRLS, LET'S PLAY A JOKE ON THE BOYS. I'LL TIE THIS CORD ON TO THE PAINTER AND LET THEM DRIFT OUT INTO THE FOG. WE'LL SEE WHETHER THEIR PRESENCE OF MIND IS A PERMANENT ASSET OR NOT.
3
HEAVENS FERDIE, THE BOAT IS DRIFTING AWAY! WE'RE LOST! THE TIDE IS CARRYING US OUT TO SEA! HELP! HELP-HEL-L-L-L-LP!
WOUGH! HI! HELP! SAVE US! WE'RE DRIFTING OUT TO SEA!
4
HA-HA! LISTEN TO THEM BELLOWING. WE'LL PULL THEM IN NOW. THIS IS THE END OF THE ROPE.
AREN'T THEY FRIGHTENED.
5
WHY HALL-ROOM, WHAT'S ALL THE SHOUTING FOR? THERE WASN'T ANY DANGER. THE TIDE IS RUNNING IN AND THE WORST THAT COULD HAVE HAPPENED WOULD BE YOUR BOAT DRIFTING TO THE SHORE.
WHAT'S THE JOKE?
THINK YOU'RE SMART DON'T YOU!

THEY ARE LOST IN A FOG—AND FOUND AGAIN

Diary of a Defaulter

By Wex Jones

SICK of this job—same old grind day after day and paid no better than half the men that are shoveling coal. Doesn't seem to be any chance for advancement, either. They went and jumped that Binks chump over my head, and I don't believe he ever had a thought in his life. Never been out with the bunch in his life. Pretty good time last night, all right. Becker must make a lot of money on the side—his job doesn't pay any better than mine, and he was buying for the crowd right along.

* * *

Don't feel much like work to-day—feeling sick for some reason or other. Out with the bunch till the cows came home this morning. Flat broke to-day. Becker told me he won $350 on the races yesterday. I guess I'll go down to the track with him to-morrow.

* * *

Didn't go to the bank yesterday. Telephoned them I was sick. Went down to the track and Becker showed me how to bet. Made about $75—guess that was a poor day's wages! A man with brains can beat that game every time.

* * *

Great time last night. I won $500 on a 50 to 1 shot yesterday—doped it out for myself. Becker says I'm a natural born handicapper—and I blew the bunch to a feed in a swell joint uptown.

* * *

Breaking pretty bad lately. Horses not running to form at all, but I'll get a winning streak soon. Old Jorgins told me to-day I didn't seem to be attending so closely to business.

* * *

I'm in a bad fix. Must make good some money I borrowed and haven't a cent. Jorgins pestered me again to-day. Asked me if I had anything on my mind and if I had to make a clean breast of it to him and he might help me. Just like those old chumps—they couldn't understand a young fellow, anyway. Becker just 'phoned Snapshot a cinch in the fifth race to-morrow—probably 10 to 1. As good as in, he said. Haven't a cent. Might hold out $500 all right until to-morrow. Ten to one—that would be $5,000 for me.

* * *

Snapshot lost. I'm $500 short. Wasn't meant to-day, Becker says. Can get even on a long shot to-morrow—Quickstep. If they get wise at the bank—I've half a mind to—but I can't. I couldn't tell old Jorgins I was a—that I took the money. Bought a gun to-day.

* * *

Made a confession to Becker to-day. Asked him if he could help me square up. Said he couldn't; he needed the money. Told me I was a fool to bother about it—that I could get out on Quickstep. * * * Borrowed $500 more from the bank. Quickstep was 15 to 1 and led all the way, and then they disqualified her, the swindlers; said she fouled the favorite at the turn. * * * They'll find out at the bank to-morrow.

* * *

"Too late," said old Jorgins, looking at the prostrate figure, the revolver lying by its side. "I might have saved the boy if I'd come to his room before this. * * *

"Well, they'll find his accounts square, anyhow. I'll see to that."

A Petition

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

GIVE us, kind Fate, enough of gold
To share with those who need it more;
Enough to clothe us from the cold
And keep the gaunt wolf from the door;
Yet not enough to bring turmoil
Or tempt us to abandon toil.

Give us the fond and wholesome joys
Of home and friends, and tender ties.
Yet, since too much of sweetness cloys,
And pleasure, unmolested, dies,
Give us our meed of pain and woe;
The Soul needs shade, at times, to grow.

Make us content with what we have,
But discontent with what we are.
The boat that's anchored to the wave
Sails not beyond the harbor bar.
Give us the courage to break free
And find what we can do and be.

As down life's changing path we grope
Joy may not always be our friend.
But let sweet Sympathy and Hope
Walk with us to the very end.
The first will help us thro' the gloom.
The last will glorify the tomb.

The Telegraph Strike

An Object Lesson in the Beauties of Private Ownership

By Prof. Frank Parsons

ANOTHER continental strike of commercial telegraph operators to protect themselves against the oppressive policy of the companies, with the prospect of a sympathetic strike of railroad telegraphers all over the United States.

Every decade or two we have a telegraph tieup from the same general causes.

Many years ago the Western Union adopted a policy of overworking operators as to hours and of replacing well paid hands so far as possible with boys and girls willing to take low wages.

Experienced operators were required to train new hands, and as fast as vacancies occurred the new recruits were installed at reduced wages.

The operators have formed a union to protect themselves.

The only way to make that union effective is to keep the companies from substituting non-union for union labor.

That is a part of the issue in the present battle. The life and effectiveness of the union are at stake, and involved in that, fair hours and wages are at stake. A strong union is the only hope of reasonable conditions under present laws and institutions.

The operators have had only one raise in thirty years, and that was a recent 10 per cent. raise, or promise of raise, which has not been fairly lived up to. That is another grievance in the present conflict.

If the telegraphs were public, as they are in Great Britain, France, Germany and throughout the civilized world, except in the United States, Canada, Honduras and Cuba, there would be no need of these industrial battles.

Labor would get fair treatment without war and without compelling every worker to join a union whether he wanted to or not.

If we had compulsory arbitration, as in New Zealand and Australia, or insisted on the representation of labor and the public on the boards of directors of public service companies, justice might be secured without cutting the nerves of commerce and all the loss of time and money involved in a continental tieup.

When will our governments get as much sense in relation to the proper methods of dealing with these monopolies as the governments of other leading countries have manifested for a generation?
